XENIANS SEE NEW FORD TUDOR AT AGENCY SHOWROOM MONDAY

Xenians obtained their first glimpse of the new Ford automobile Monday when a Tudor sedan was placed on exhibition for one day at the Bryant Motor Sales, Market and Green Sts.

The Ford agency will remain open until 11 o'clock Monday night as the model will only be in Xenia one day before being shipped to Piqua, officials announced.

Crowds of interested visitors thronged the agency's show rooms Monday for the first complete public description of the new line of Ford automobiles, and learned the details of the car which is to succeed the famous Model T Ford after more than nineteen years.

Visitors kept the local sales force busy throughout the day pointing out the new features of the car.

On all sides were heard comments of surprise at the striking change in the appearance of the new model. The low, rakish lines, the striking new colors and the luxurious equipment of the new automobiles, made a marked impression on the crowds of visitors.

The new Tudor sedan is long, wide and roomy. Narrow pillars and new door construction give unusual vision. Both front seats fold forward, giving easy access to the rear seat. There is also ample space between seats.

Details of the performance, however, as they were unfolded by the attendants, were even more impressive to the visitors. Visitors were especially pleased with the speed, pickup and ease of handling of the new cars, and with the fact they are equipped with four-wheel brakes, shock absorbers and standard gear shift transmission of the type used in cars in a much higher priced class.

Ford factories at Detroit and branch plants in other sections of the United States are now preparing for capacity production and it is expected that all dealers will be able to meet the demand in full within the next few weeks.

SHERIFF ATTEMPTS TO IDENTIFY LOOT STOLEN BY SUSPECT

Sheriff Ohmer Tate is still at tempting to establish ownership of numerous articles believed to have been stolen, discovered at the farm home of George Jacobs, 34, fugitive from justice, who was returned to Hamilton to face a charge in that city.

Authorities declared that ten bushels of corn, stolen by Jacobs the day before his arrest, had been taken from a neighboring farm one mile from Jacobs' residence, tented by a colored family.

Sheriff Tate is awaiting identification of nine chickens of different breeds; two auto tires for a Ford car, one of Lancaster make and the other a Kelly tire; a raincoat, a woman's winter dress coat, and a pair of light top Endicott-Johnson man's shoes.

Attempts to identify the owner of an Overland coach, which Jacobs admitted he had stolen, have been unsuccessful.

ENTERTAINERS ON LYCEUM PROGRAM AT CENTRAL HIGH

Taylor and Keylor, offering a unique and original entertainment, will appear at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Tuesday night, December 6 for the third number on Central High School's Lyceum course.

His assistant, H. L. Keylor, is a soloist of considerable attainment and is said to be a thoroughly capable musician and entertainer, whose versatility adds much to the program.

An evening with these two gifted entertainers is said to be in reality a delightful trip through "Fun-Land," "Music-Land," and "Mystery-Land."

MAY EXHUME BODY OF BARN FIRE VICTIM

Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, coroner, may exhume the body of a man found in the ruins of the Edward Holman barn, near Osborn, destroyed by fire last Monday.

The coroner hopes a further examination may show whether the arms and legs were cut from the torso found in the barn ruins and thus determine whether the man was murdered.

The fact that the heavy arm and leg bones are missing, whereas they would be most likely to resist the heat, supports a theory that the body was dismembered before being abandoned in the barn. In that event his slayer may have fired the barn to cover traces of the crime.

Dr. Chambliss has not been able to connect the disappearance of William Buzard, 52, from his home in Brookville November 25, with the Osborn case.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strains. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE. —Adv.

SUPREMACY OF NEWSPAPERS

Marconi, radio wizard, thus compares the field of radio and newspapers:

"The newspaper has this distinct advantage: It is a record. You cannot paste radio announcements in a scrapbook; newspapers put the news down in black and white.

"Of course, the radio has its advantages. A radio impulse in travel around the world in one-seventh of a second, and news can be transmitted almost instantaneously."

The newspaper cannot give the world the splendid musical program available through the radio; but the press, he feels, will always be the big power in the world for expressing opinion by rulers and statesmen, and for the big events of news.

DOUBLE PENALTY FOR "GUN-TOTIN" CRIMINALS

There is a lot of talk about how to reduce the crime wave and one of the first suggestions is to prohibit the ownership of firearms.

This would remove protection which the private citizen has against burglary, robbery and assault, but it would not prevent the criminal from securing firearms. His business is unlawful and it would not bother him at all to go a step further and procure arms contrary to the law, smuggled in from other sources.

The fact that the private citizen could not lawfully buy arms would make the work of the thug just that much easier.

The logical way to reduce crime is to assure speedy punishment, also to provide that the use of a gun or any other form of concealed weapon in committing a crime should demand an increased sentence, with no possibility of probation or suspended sentence.

The average American citizen enjoys target practice and he enjoys hunting. It is healthy sport and recreation. Why should he be prohibited the use of a gun on the theory that this will prevent the use of guns by criminals? Why not make the penalty doubly severe on the criminal using a gun, instead of penalizing a law-abiding citizen who uses a gun for legitimate purposes.

AVOIDING GRIEF

If there is one thing that the American people dislike, it is standing in line. If you watch a row of people lined up before a ticket window, they always look uncomfortable. They can not talk pleasantly to their neighbors if they see them in that line, but they look as if they were the victims of some great grievance, and as if they wanted to hit someone responsible for this indignity.

If the amount of time wasted by the American people in standing in line in post-offices, stores, etc., at the Christmas season were computed, it would be an astonishing amount. And most of that wasted time is unnecessary.

It can be avoided by the very simple and easy habit of buying stuff early. Those who get their gifts bought and shipped two or three weeks before the holiday, will not in most places have to wait much.

CELEBRATING WHAT?

Russia has been celebrating the 10th anniversary of its communist government. It has no doubt demonstrated that a government can run on communist lines, but that does not prove that it will make the people happy.

The people can get rid of the inequalities of wealth, if they want to, and if they will consent that everyone shall suffer indefinitely from poverty. But if any inducement is to be given to people to work and save money and become more efficient, they must feel sure of being rewarded for their labors. Capitalism involves inequalities of wealth, but it gives everyone a chance to get a reward for what he does.

The Way of the World

LOOSE TALK

A great deal of harm is done by that loose talk which claims everything in sight. We read that a French statesman quotes Nietzsche as having written this: "All that is noble in European sentiment, taste, and manners has been invented in France." Of course that is true and no longer is it even a popular misconception. So many lies are accepted which have no basis in fact.

The Puritans are held up to high school and even college students as great lovers of democracy. They are supposed to have hated kings and social classes. They didn't at all. They were aristocrats in temperament and in their ideas of government. They would only let property holders vote. On the whole they appear to have been pretty nobbish. They thought a poor man ought to know his place. They were strong for humility—for the other fellow.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

There persists the widespread belief that you can get something for nothing. Many people want to learn to talk more smoothly and effectively. They complain, sometimes bitterly, because of their inability to express themselves adequately. We all suffer from common laziness. If we want to learn to talk we must learn language. To learn language we must study it. Words are to be adopted, made our own, one by one.

A great public speaker, talking to a young man, said: "Take a new word for your exercise every night. For fifteen minutes walk up and down the floor or somewhere else and learn that word. Use it in a sentence. Make that word your own. Some day, when you want to, you will not have to think and reckon and wait for it. It will come quickly to your tongue and say 'here I am.'"

TRY THE DICTIONARY

Speaking of words, Franklin was not too busy with all his affairs to study the dictionary. He learned words by hard, plugging study.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A tabloid in search of a trick story, assigned two reporters to scour the city armed with twenty dollar bills, try to get them changed, and find out just how many people were overly suspicious. The result was that no one would change them. The reporters would offer the bills for five dollar or for one dollar bills, offering the excuse that money in that denomination was so necessary as to be worth fifteen dollars or more loss. No one accepted. Then they offered them for a nickel and finally for a penny. Some of those accosted grew angry and called policemen. The paper commented on the story satirically, pointing out the stupidity of supposed canny New Yorkers in passing up a rare opportunity such as this. Perhaps—at least in the instances of people refusing to make even change, with no gain—this is so.

But for the rest of the cases, the situation seems just the reverse. It requires no great brain to realize that an offer of twenty-dollar bills for a nickel can scarcely be made in good faith. And the fact that two reporters, out for a feature story, were an exception, alters the rule not a whit. The man who had given a nickel for the twenty would have been ninety cents richer. For all of that, he might also have been a wall-eyed idiot.

Ruth Elder's engagement at the Capitol for a week served to show what a wise young man Lindbergh was in refusing all theatrical contracts. The Capitol audience, applauded her vigorously, but they left the theatre, I am sure, considerably disillusioned about this national heroine.

She knew nothing of the stage and apparently those in charge either didn't have time, or care enough to stage her appearance to the best advantage. What she did do was to come out, clad in bright red sweater and golf socks, tan plus fours with a wad of make-up on her face, so as to detract from her natural prettiness and deliver a stilted speech. This last, apparently, was lifted in whole from a newspaper account of Ruth's flight, for it certainly was never meant for elocution. Ruth struggled through its long complexity the tone of a school girl at graduation and with gestures inferior to many a school girl.

She hadn't learned her piece so well, either, and so she had to halt and blush and stammer, quite a number of times. This finished, she reappeared later, as a grand finale to the act she had been part of in a ridiculous little wooden airplane, swung clumsily in the air by wires. In a few minutes, she had lost all the dignity an (almost) transatlantic flight had given her.

Another bad feature about the act was that George Haldeman was wholly omitted. Ruth, of course, was the glamorous half of the adventurous pair. But after all, it was Haldeman who piloted the plane; Haldeman who navigated it. That he was thus slighted and Ruth, who was technically little more than a burden in the flight, raised to such prominence and praise, that will not help to endear Miss Elder either.

KELLYGRAMS
by Fred C. Kelly
Wayside Observations

Sheep, pigs, goats, cows and chickens roam about pretty much at random in Ireland. Wire fences are few and the stone fences are not always high enough to confine an enterprising animal. Hence these various creatures go about where they please. Even in little towns one sees a flock of sheep standing peacefully in the middle of the street, looking around as if waiting for the signal of a traffic cop.

Because these sheep and goats are allowed to go where fancy dictates, the roadside is free from objectionable weeds with sod like a private lawn. The goats give just the right touch to this kind of scenery.

The sheep have marks corresponding to cattle brands painted on their wool, to indicate their ownership. But I don't know how anybody knows his own goat. An average goat never seems to me to have much individuality unless you know him real well.

Since the winters are mild, sheep are expected to find their own food, and are not fed in the barnyard at all. Food is each hen's personal problem. She must wander about and select whatever seems best suited to her purposes. And she must use excellent judgment in picking a properly balanced diet, for she lays the best eggs in the world! Possibly the fact that the hen gets plenty of exercise and eats what she likes is the explanation of these extraordinarily good eggs. At any rate, I have never tasted such eggs as one finds in Ireland, whether in hotel or peasant cottage. Of course, cold storage eggs are unknown. For which, praise be to Allah!

I wondered, before reaching Ireland, if the people really kept the pig in the parlor. They do; but not in the way one expects to find. The parlor is not a pig sty, any more than an American drawing room becomes a dog kennel just because the family has a pet dog with house privileges. In Ireland, pigs are treated almost as pets, and they do wander into the house somewhat more familiarly than might find approval with us. They are not fat pigs, but razor-backs—much more vivacious than ours. There are the pigs from which come the Irish bacon famous in song and story.

Mr. G.—If you are a diabetic, you should be under the care of a specialist, and not be trying to manage your own case. No, it is not necessary to use special diabetic foods. Many physicians teach their patients to but razor-backs—much more vivacious than ours. There are the pigs from which come the Irish bacon famous in song and story.

GENTLEMEN, BE SEATED!

How to Achieve Beauty
BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Protect Your Eyes Against the Harm of Winter Glare and Squinting

The care of your eyes is a special problem in the winter "snow" months. The glare of reflected light from the snow is even more of a strain on them than direct rays of the summer sun. You know how mountain climbers find it so essential to put on dark glasses when they have passed the snow line.

You cannot count on the protection of hats against this kind of glare, for it comes from the ground up. Its chief danger is in making you squint, and whenever you do that, fine lines radiate out from your eyes. The very young person can squint, and as soon as she comes in out of the glare, the lines all fade away. But, as a woman gets older, even as early in life as 25, the skin will not of its own accord grow smooth again. Crow's feet get their beginning in just that way. I believe that every woman should use an anti-wrinkle cream around her eyes after she is 25, especially in the extremes of summer and winter weather.

Shrivelled eyelids and crow's feet are unknown to the woman who has formed the excellent habit of patting her anti-wrinkle cream into the thin, easily lined skin around her eyes.

Since the eyes get dirty in winter from the smoke and dirt that fills the air, I advise frequently washing them, either by dashing cold water into them or with an eye cup containing a restful, cleansing lotion. A mild solution of boric acid is excellent for this purpose.

You should take special pains with your eye make-up in order to make it protective against drying winds. Never powder your eyelids. The powder gets into the little creases and helps to make them into wrinkles. Any make-up around your eyes should be soft, both for beauty and protection. The best eye shadow comes in cream form. Or, if you do not use eye shadow leave a very, very light film of your face cream on your eyelids. I have seen the best results in salon treatments from using prepared eye shadow cream or from mixing a little cream with dry eye shadow. The soft effect is most flattering to your eyes and complexion and you can be sure that your eyelids are not growing prematurely aged.

Cocoanut Orange Shortcake—Pare oranges and remove pulp in sections with a sharp knife. Place between and on top of biscuit, sprinkling each layer with powdered sugar. On top sprinkle shredded cocoanut.

Peach Shortcake—Drain the juice from one can of sliced peaches. Add an equal quantity of sugar, stir over the fire until dissolved and boil three minutes. Add two tablespoons of butter and serve as a hot sauce for the shortcake. Arrange the peach slices between and on top of biscuits. Garnish with whipped cream.

Fruit Shortcake—Two cups flour, half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons shortening, four tablespoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar, three-fourths cup milk.

Sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening, and add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Pat one-fourth inch thick. Cut in two inch rounds. Place half of rounds on a baking pan, spread with butter and place the remaining halves on top. Bake in a hot oven (440 degrees to 450 degrees F.) ten to twelve minutes. Separate halves of cake. Spread with butter and place a spoonful of fruit between and on top. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

Prune Shortcake—one and one-half cups water, two tablespoons butter, half cup sugar, one and one-half cups prunes.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Henry Ford, as we all know, because he's proclaimed it from the house-tops several times, is one of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover's best boosters for the presidency.

John Hays Hammond is the other. Between these two, politicians reckon Herbert surely ought to be able to finance a campaign, if he finally chooses to run.

Henry's said to be still pretty well fixed, even if it did cost him a few hundred millions to make over his car. John H., while no such Croesus as the flivver king, nevertheless is far richer than mud.

If it's easy to understand why Henry approves of Herb, as the very soul of efficiency and championship standardizer of the United States, it's easier yet to understand why John Hays Hammond approves of him.

Standardization may not appeal quite as violently to John Hays as to Henry—the former is a cultured man, of catholic tastes, who knows what's what in rare vintages and objects d'art, and prefers not to have all his things poured out of the same mould—but efficiency does.

Aside from that, John Hays Hammond and Herbert C. Hoover (his middle name's Clark but he doesn't use it because it isn't alliterative) are fellow mining engineers, and powerful successful ones, too.

Each was born with a swivel foot, which has carried him all over the world.

They've got things in common—that pair.

John Hays Hammond and Herbert Hoover, alike, have dug holes all over the face of this earth.

Naturally they like to swap experiences.

They're quite near neighbors here in Washington—live only two or three blocks apart—and can get together in what spare time Herbert's got and, so far as John Hays is concerned, in any time there is—for he's retired completely and does nothing but clip coupons and write his memoirs.

They have samples of ore to show one another.

Herbert tells John Hays about the coolies he worked in North China. John Hays tells Herbert about the kaffirs he bossed in South Africa.

Then again, they're mutual acquaintances.

They both know all the kings and queens and presidents and empire builders and other moguls there are to be known—and John Hays knew a lot who are dead or deceased—not from meeting 'em at formal receptions, but from sitting down and talking with 'em off dress parade, like ordinary folks.

John Hays, referring to King George, recounts what he said to him, and Herbert, speaking of the Queen of Belgium, relates what he said to her.

When it comes to adventures, John Hays Hammond rather has it on Secretary Hoover.

The former was once sentenced to be hanged, and Herbert can't quite tie that yarn. On the other hand, Herbert's story about feeding the Belgians, in its way beats anything John Hays has to offer.

One thing with another, it's a pretty even break.

John Hays Hammond himself has been a bit talked about for the presidency, in his time, but at 70—odd he's too old for it now.

That being the case, if he can manage it, he'd like to see the job filled by some other competent mining engineer.

Living and Loving
BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Somehow these teens that most of us think of as the teens, notwithstanding the saying that youth is the happiest period. Not only is it time of physical change, but also mental, and parents often seem unable to realize that their little people are growing up and need a different attitude.

How I wish all parents would try hard to remember how they felt when they were at that uncomfortable age and be as understanding and sympathetic as possible.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a 14-year-old sophomore in high school. I have been invited to several parties, but I am never allowed to hold any in my own home, because my mother objects to having boys at parties until I am 16."

"Now, you must know, Mrs. Lee, that everyone has boys and girl parties, don't they? I have several boy friends who are nice, quiet boys and as I shall soon be 15 I should like to have a birthday party. What would you suggest? Shall I try to argue mother into being 'modern'? Please answer my letter as soon as possible."

I don't know where your letter has been all this time, Sally, but I know I was shocked when I saw the date. I try to answer them in turn, but if yours came I must have been sadly misled. I am so sorry. Mother's dictum that you should not go with boys until you are 16 sounds sensible, and I would be all right if you were not associating with boys all the time in school. Tell her you want to know the boys who are your friends so she will be able to help you choose the right kind when you are old enough to go with them.

I'm afraid I can't do that, Kitty. He evidently likes you, but has lost interest as far as wishing to have very much of your company. Don't be afraid of the future without him. Just make up your mind to have other friends, and you will find in time you don't care, either.

Peter's Adventures
By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

"Well, how did you like it?" demanded Rattler. Peter shook his head. "Not a bit," said he. "It made me feel creepy."

"I thought you wouldn't," I thought it would," hissed Rattler, replying to Peter's remarks in the same breath and sounding hoarse and mixed up. "If you shiver like that at watching only me, I don't know what you would have done if you could have seen that crowd of us twisting and coiling, out on that sun-baked ledge."

"I don't understand why you did not fall off!" exclaimed the Boy.

"No danger," answered Rattler. "Every Serpent made sure of his distance. You are sure of that. His body is his measuring tape. He knew whether he was going to land on the ledge or over it before he leaped. You see, we haven't any feet to carry us into trouble. All we must think about are our bodies. When those are once accounted for we are all right. Why, we can have a lot of fun and exercise without moving from a spot."

"I'll say so!" cried Peter, as he watched Rattler going through the same performance again. "You are a bundle of muscles, aren't you?" "Almost," agreed the Serpent, and added proudly, "And every muscle is as tough as tripe. My muscles get that way from using them every minute in the day. Well, Two-Legs have I given you a pretty good idea of what a Snake Dance is?"

NEW FORD CAR

exceeds all expectations

Official announcement of new model last week created unusual interest throughout entire country

THE new Ford car has been on the market only a few days, but it has already created unusual interest throughout the country. Millions of people got the full details of it last week for the first time and were delighted with the story of its beauty, speed, comfort, safety and low price.

All day long and far into the night, great crowds gathered in hundreds of Ford salesrooms from Maine to Florida and from New York to San Francisco. Never has such interest been shown in a new car. Never has any new car so far exceeded expectations.

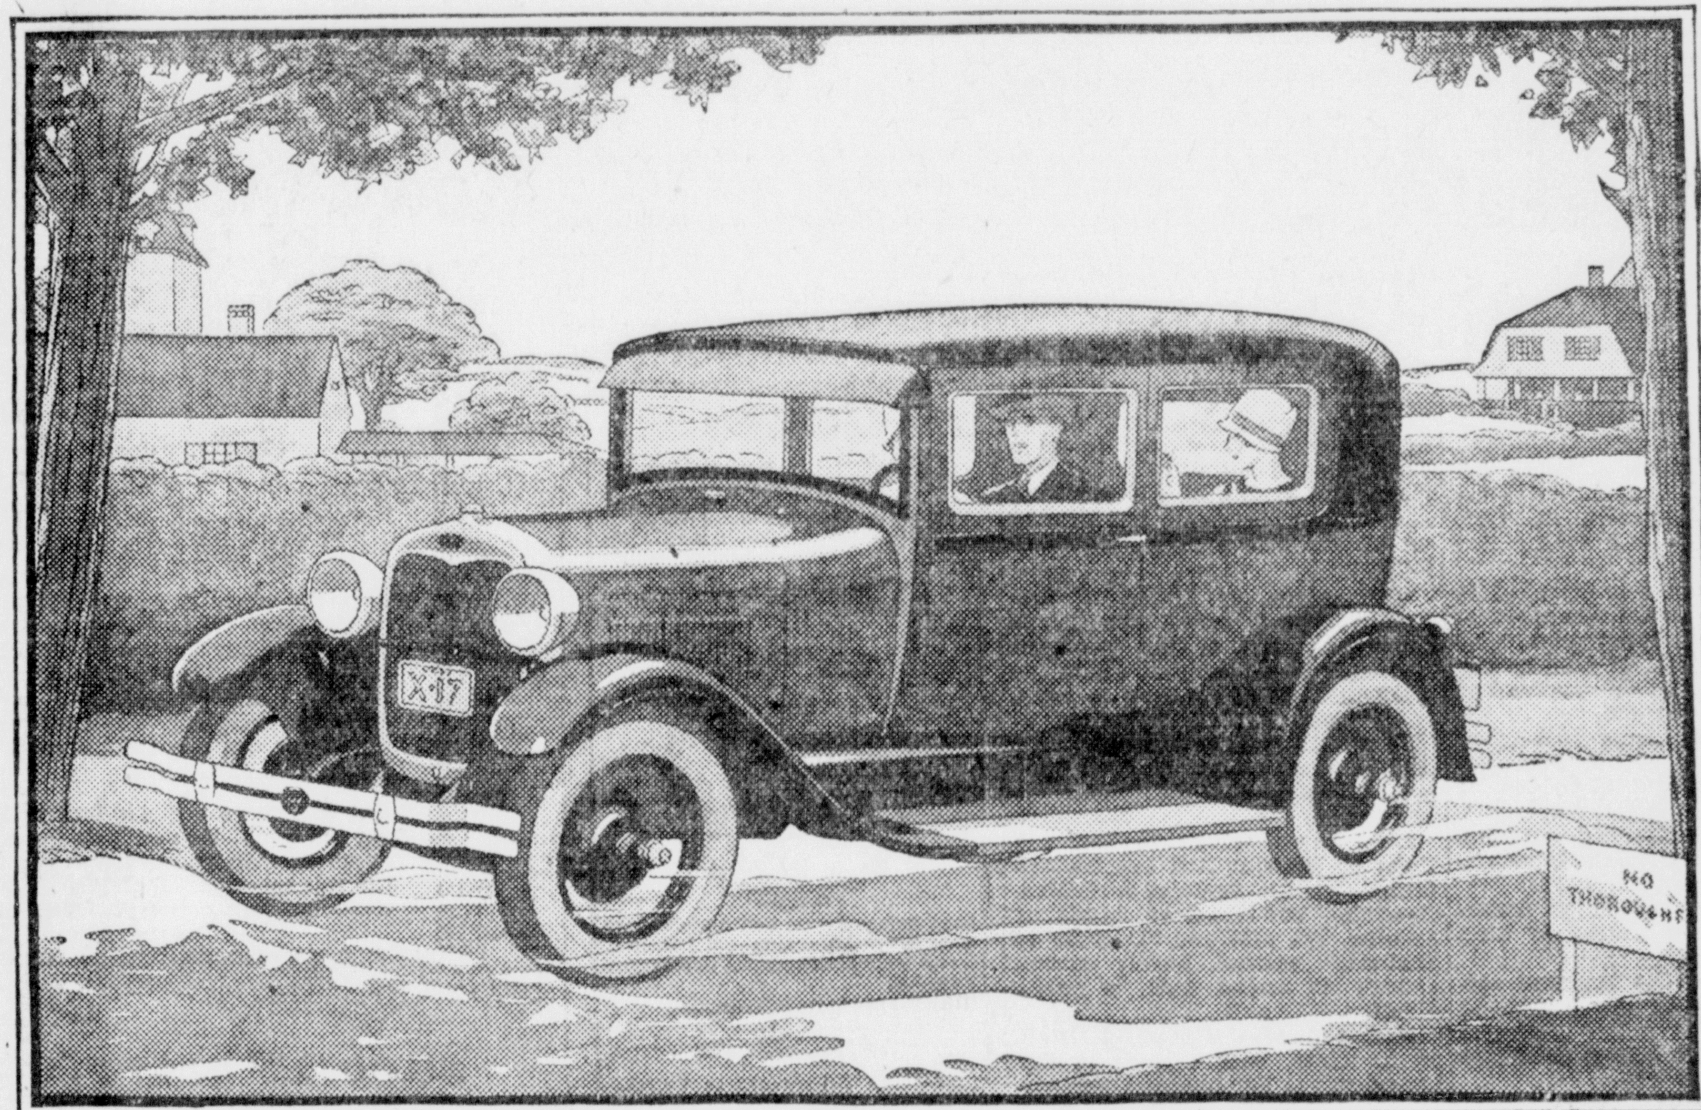

People knew that Ford was making a new car. They knew it was a good car. They had read announcements about it. But they had no idea it would be a car like this. Their quick appreciation of it is shown by the record-breaking sales.

Greatest day in the history of the automobile industry

Thousands upon thousands of orders for the new Ford car have been received since last Friday. These and the advance orders placed with us by motorists even before the car was officially announced, will keep the entire Ford plant working day and night for weeks to come.

Such figures are a clear and unmistakable reflection of the value that has been built into the new Ford car. It is, without question, the outstanding purchase of all time in the light-car field.

Until you see the beauty of the new Ford car—ride in it—know the thrill of driving it easily and safely through thickest traffic or step it up to sixty and sixty-five on the open road, you cannot begin to appreciate the extent of the many mechanical improvements embodied in its construction. It is difficult to believe that so much speed, power, beauty, quiet, comfort and safety can be had at such a low price. It would be impossible if this new car were made by anyone but Ford.

Only Ford could sell such a fine car at such a low price

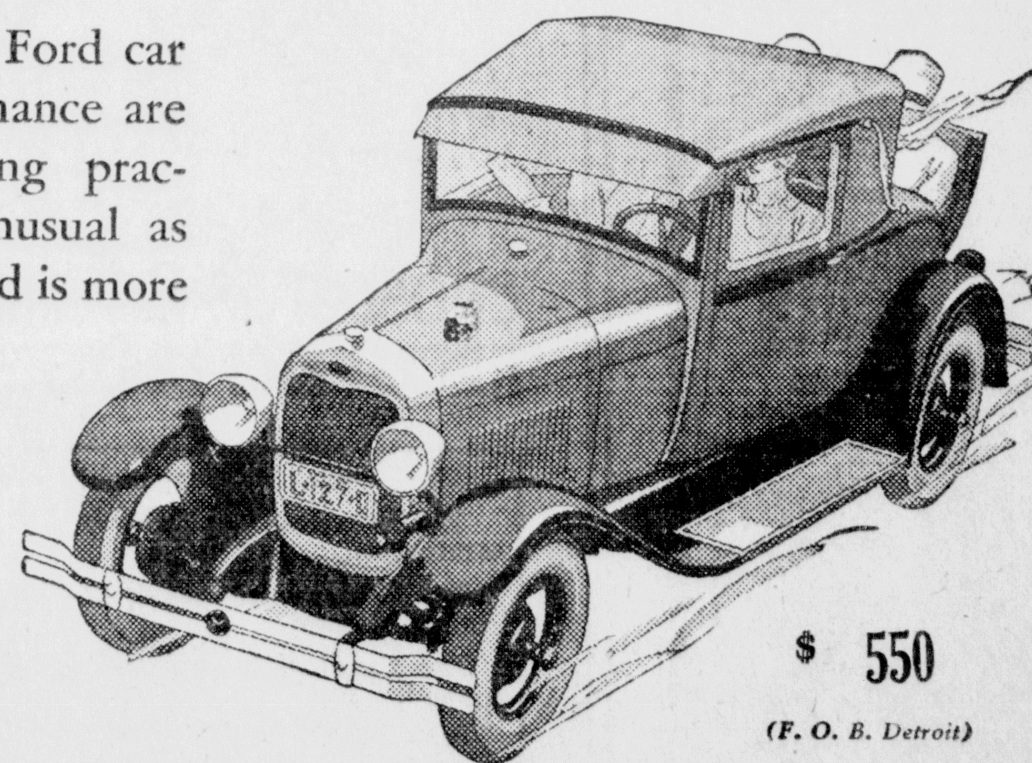

The low price of the new Ford car and its exceptional performance are the result of manufacturing practices and economies as unusual as the car itself. The new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

By all means, take a little while today to learn about this new automobile. You will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

TWO INDICTED MEN PAROLED; THIRD IS WAITING DECISION

Three persons, all colored, indicted by the October grand jury, were arraigned in Common Pleas Court Saturday. Disposition was made of two cases and paroles were granted in both instances.

George Pettiford, pleading guilty to an indictment for removing mortgaged property out of the state, was sentenced to serve from one to five years in Ohio State Penitentiary and then paroled in the custody of Attorney E. D. Smith.

The parole was with the consent of Fred S. Johnston, prosecuting witness. The court stipulated that Pettiford must pay Attorney Smith $10 per month until $25 is paid back to Johnston.

Bertha Harris was paroled in the care of William S. Rogers, after being sentenced to serve from one to twenty years in the Ohio Reformatory for Women at Marysville, O., on an indictment for cutting with intent to kill. She pleaded guilty. Future good behavior is also made a condition of the parole.

John Morgan withdrew a former plea of not guilty in favor of a guilty plea to an indictment for concealing stolen property. The court reserved sentence pending a further investigation of the case. Morgan was permitted to be released on his own recognizance on his promise to remain in Greene County, subject to further order of the court.

BELGIAN CROWN PRINCE SERVES AS YOUNGEST LEGISLATOR

By ANNE SOMERHAUSEN

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 2.—"Leopold, Prince of Belgium, Duke of Brabant, do you swear that you will obey the constitution?"

"I swear that I shall obey the Belgian constitution."

Tall, blonde, blue-eyed, young Prince Leopold, Belgium's throne heir, promised in a firm voice to obey the constitution that will make him a king of a country no larger than Maryland, but owning an African colony eighty times as large.

The prince, or "Duke of Brabant," as he is called officially, is twenty-six, and is the youngest legislator in his country, where the minimum age of senators is forty.

Princess Astrid's function

Prince Leopold's decision to enter the senate came as a surprise even to members of the Belgian upper house.

Only three weeks earlier, the Duke of Brabant had become the father of little Princess Josephine-Charlotte, and Princess Astrid of Sweden, his wife and "Duchess of Brabant," seemed hardly strong enough to attend such a public function.

Nevertheless, she came, all dressed in white, with orchids in her hands, to see her husband join the aged legislators who will initiate him into politics and the making of laws.

Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid are so popular that even the Socialist senators arose on the occasion to welcome the couple to their midst.

When they were married, a year ago, in Sweden, and returned to Belgium, the crowds were so enthusiastic about their youth and grace that they broke through the lines of police and soldiers, and surrounded the royal couple, separated them from all their courtiers, and half carried them to the city hall.

Loved by Countrymen

The young crown prince first gained the love of his countrymen when he volunteered during the World war, at the age of fifteen, at a time when the Belgian army fought desperately around Ypres to save the last inches of Belgian soil.

Two years ago, the crown prince traveled all over Belgian Congo colony and started a nation-wide movement in favor of economic and social improvements in the colony.

When Prince Leopold succeeds his father, King Albert, to the throne, he will be known as Leopold III, fourth king of the Belgians. The first sovereign was elected by the Belgian nation after it had separated from Dutch Netherlands, in 1830.

Belgium's second king was Leopold II, who, by shrewd diplomatic activity, acquired the huge Congo colony in Central Africa, with a wealth of copper, diamond and gold mines.

Since only men succeed to the throne in Belgium, the recent birth of Prince Leopold's little daughter was not celebrated as enthusiastically as the birth of a prince would have been. Only fifty-one gun shots were fired in honor of the princess, while there would have been 121 for a prince.

COLUMBUS OPERA TO OPEN FEBRUARY 20; "AIDA" IS PREMIER

Many advance subscriptions for the season of grand opera to be given in Columbus by the Chicago Civic Opera Company are already in the mail, although the first performance is not until February 20. The residents of Central Ohio have never before had an opportunity to hear grand opera of the highest type without traveling to distant cities for the privilege. Prices, too, are within easy reach, being scaled from $2.00 to $6.00. Requests for reservations are being sent to Mrs. Percin B. Monypeny, 320 First National Bank Building, Columbus, who is in charge of the advance sale.

The three performances, scheduled for February 20, 21 and 22, will be given at the New Columbus Auditorium, Town and Front Streets.

This structure has a seating capacity of 5,500 and a stage so large and so completely equipped that it is one of the most spectacular in the world.

"Aida," with its opening performance. This famous opera of Verdi's with its sumptuous pageant of ancient Egypt, will be sung by a stellar cast headed by Rosa Raisa in the title role. Associated with her will be Charles Marshall, Giacomo Rini (who, in private life, is Raisa's husband), Cyrena Van Gordon and Virgilio Lazarri. An orchestra of 60, a chorus of 50 and a large ballet are involved in this, as in the other operas to be presented.

Tuesday night will offer America's most famous prima donna, Mary Garden, in the latest of her series of operatic portraits—the part of Katusha in "Resurrection." This opera, the outstanding novelty of last season in Chicago, is the work of Franco Alfano, the composer who was chosen by Puccini to complete the opera "Turandot" which was left unfinished at the elder composer's death. Miss Garden will be supported by Lorna Doone Jackson, Julia Claessens, Rene Malsion and Cesare Formichi.

The third performance will be "La Traviata," presenting Claudio Muzio as Violetta. Other characters in this operatic version of "Camille" will be Alice d'Hermann, Charles Hackett, Richard Bonelli, Jose Mojica and Desire DeFreere.

CHILD CUT ABOUT FACE IN ACCIDENT

Merlin Dean (Stonerock, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlin Stonerock, 1836 Rose Ave., Dayton, was seriously cut in the eye and on his face by flying glass when an auto driven by the boy's father, collided with a car driven by a colored man by the name of Rose, near Bishop's Corner, near Jamestown, Saturday night.

One of the other occupants of the machines was hurt. The accident happened, it is said, when Rose, driving ahead of Stonerock, made a sudden left-hand turn and the front of the Stonerock car and that driven by Rose locked fenders. The Stonerock car was thrown off the road and plunged through a fence. The child was cut by the broken windshield.

SPRING VALLEY TEAMS DIVIDE OVERTIME GAME WITH KINGMAN

Spring Valley High School boys' and girls' basketball teams broke even in two games with Kingman High on the former's floor Friday night, the Valley feminine team winning easily 22 to 8 while the boys were defeated in an overtime game by one point, 18 to 17.

Spring Valley boys have never beaten Kingman but came closer to victory in Friday's game than on any previous occasion.

The score stood 17 to 17 at the end of the regulation playing period, requiring a three-minute extra session. In the over-time period, a foul was called on a Spring Valley player and Shadaker, star Kingman forward, made the free throw for what proved to be the winning point.

Shadaker was the individual star of the contest, scoring twelve points, including four baskets and four free throws. After making the winning point in the extra period, he was forced from the contest by the personal foul rule.

There was no outstanding star for Spring Valley and the point-making was divided between the two forwards, Smith and Funk, and Beam, center. Smith scored

PAUL WANER CHOSEN MOST VALUABLE OF NATIONAL PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Paul (Big Poison) Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been chosen the most valuable player in the National League. Waner amassed a total of seventy-two points in the votes cast by newspapermen from eight different cities, six more than Frankie Frisch got, and he will be awarded a bronze medal and $1,000 in cash.

Rogers Hornsby was third with fifty-four points. The highest possible vote is eighty points. Each of eight newspapermen, one from each city in the league, vote for ten players, listing them as he rates them in order of value to their teams.

Five of the writers named Waner for first place, two awarded him third place and one listed him fifth. Frisch did not have a first place, but he got a block of second and thirds. The voting for first place was the closest since the National League inaugurated the plan in 1924. Twenty-six players were voted for, those who received ten or more points are:

In the City League, a tie for first place was shattered, leaving The Downtown Country Club in sole possession of the top rung. The Country Club won three straight games while The Brown Furniture Co. was winning two out of three.

ONE NICKEL!
That's All It Takes to Settle This Question of Real Smokes at 5c Per
Some men say it can't be done. Some men say it never could be done. Some men say it never will be done. Let them argue. The fact remains that a mild, fragrant cigar can be produced to sell for 5c. There is such a cigar on sale today. A cigar that's been on the market for thirty years and is selling bigger than ever—at 5c. A cigar that cost more money for years. That is a finer smoke today than it ever was. It's mild, ripe tobacco. A cool, slow smoker. Full of aroma. Satisfying. It's got everything you have a right to expect in a higher-priced cigar. Hard to believe? Here's the way to prove it, at a total cost of five cents. Ask for just one Havana Ribbon anywhere in town. You'll know the happy truth from the first draw. If you wonder how we do it, the answer is volume production. Production that runs into millions. Buy one Havana Ribbon today, and you'll buy a dozen tomorrow.

I've just got to tell somebody

NO, I'M not going to be married. Neither have I fallen heir to a lot of money. But I have discovered the one tobacco that makes a pipe come through a thousand per cent—Prince Albert!

Yes, Sir, Prince Albert—the world's largest-selling brand. I was sitting with a fellow-commuter the other morning, when he was filling his pipe from a bright-red tin. I got a whiff of that tobacco and said: "Do you mind if I borrow a load?" He passed the tin over, and I filled up and lighted up.

I never tasted anything so good in my life. It was wonderfully cool and sweet, with a mildness I had never met before in a pipe-tobacco. Mild, as I say, yet it had that rich, rare body that put satisfaction into every pull. What a taste!

I could hardly wait till the train pulled in to get me a supply. I've smoked enough of this cool, mild, long-burning tobacco to know that it gives you deep-down contentment in every load. Try Prince Albert. You'll say so!

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DARLINGTON HEARD BY CLUB MEMBERS
Attorney Charles L. Darlington was honor guest and principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the newly-formed Xenia Sunday Evening Club at Christ Episcopal Church Parish House Sunday night.
Attorney Darlington, who is a former past commander of the Ohio and Xenia American Legion, narrated his experiences while abroad this summer as a delegate to the Legion convention at Paris and as a member of a party which took a commanders' tour over Europe following the convention.
Light refreshments were served, preceding the talk, in charge of the entertainment committee.

OHIO CONFERENCE FIXES SCHEDULES
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Athletic coaches of Ohio conference colleges met in their annual session here today to fix policies and schedules for next year.
Arranging of next year's football schedules is the most important matter before the meeting. Each of the six schools in the Buckeye athletic association, Wesleyan, Denison, Wittenberg, Miami, Cincinnati and Ohio University, is understood to have agreed to play one game with each of the others next season.
The six colleges in the northeastern Ohio group, Case, Reser, Lorain, Wooster, Akron and Mt. Union, will also probably arrange most of their schedule among themselves. There have been persistent reports during the last week that some of the other colleges in the conference which are not members of any scheduling league have become dissatisfied and are seeking to break away.

SPRING VALLEY TEAMS DIVIDE
OVERTIME GAME WITH KINGMAN
Spring Valley High School boys' and girls' basketball teams broke even in two games with Kingman High on the former's floor Friday night, the Valley feminine team winning easily 22 to 8 while the boys were defeated in an overtime game by one point, 18 to 17.
Spring Valley boys have never beaten Kingman but came closer to victory in Friday's game than on any previous occasion.
The score stood 17 to 17 at the end of the regulation playing period, requiring a three-minute extra session. In the over-time period, a foul was called on a Spring Valley player and Shadaker, star Kingman forward, made the free throw for what proved to be the winning point.
Shadaker was the individual star of the contest, scoring twelve points, including four baskets and four free throws. After making the winning point in the extra period, he was forced from the contest by the personal foul rule.
There was no outstanding star for Spring Valley and the point-making was divided between the two forwards, Smith and Funk, and Beam, center. Smith scored

MERCHANTS USE AERIAL GAME TO DEFEAT DAYTON KESSLER TEAM
Locals Complete Ten Out Of Fourteen Pass Attempts For 184 Yards—Yeakley And Smith Star In Final Grid Game
Xenia Merchants passed their way to an 18 to 0 victory over the Kessler Athletic Club, 150-pound champions of Dayton, to close the 1927 football season in a successful manner Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.
The victory enabled the Merchants to wind up the brief season with two games won and one lost in three played.
Xenia's first touchdown came late in the opening period when Parks recovered a partially blocked Kessler punt and carried the ball to the Dayton twenty-yard line. Captain Smith made a first down on three line plays and the first score resulted when Smith passed to Holton on the goal line.
The second and third periods were devoid of scoring. The Merchants led at least one good chance to score slip by in the second quarter. After completing four straight passes, which placed the pigskin on Dayton's twenty, a pass was thrown into the end zone and the ball changed hands.

Dayton displayed by far its best form of the contest in the third period, advancing the ball after the opening kickoff for two consecutive first downs. The offense ended at this point and the play thereafter was in Dayton territory almost exclusively.
Merchants tallied two more touchdowns in the final quarter, first after gaining possession of the ball on Dayton's thirty-five yard line. Captain Smith gained five and then tossed a thirty-yard pass to Perrine for a score. A place kick for the extra point fell short.
The third touchdown came in the closing minutes of the contest through a successful forward pass attack. Perrine blocked a Dayton pass and while the ball was still in the air, caught it and raced to midfield. A pass, Holton to Smith, gained forty-nine yards and placed the ball on the one-yard line, from where Smith had the honor of plunging across for the marker. For the third time the try for extra point failed.
Statistics of the contest indicate Xenia's superiority lay in its aerial offensive. Out of fourteen passes attempted by the Merchants, ten were completed for a net gain of 184 yards. The remaining four were incomplete. Dayton tried five passes, completing one, while two were grounded and two were intercepted.
Xenia registered seven first downs to four for Dayton. Only one penalty was imposed during the entire game, which set Xenia back five yards.
Captain Smith, at fullback, and Yeakley at center, played outstanding games for Xenia, the former on the offensive and the latter on the defensive. Myers, halfback, and Bruin, quarterback, starred for Dayton.

Money Love

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

LILY LEXINGTON, spoiled daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry a rich bachelor named STALEY DRUMMOND. Then she falls in love "at first sight" with a taxi driver whom she sees on the street. Forgetting that she is on her way to meet her chum, SUE CAIN, for lunch, she jumps into his cab and asks him to drive her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. But he sells the cab to help finance a piston ring that he has invented and wants to market.

He and his cab vanish from the down town streets, and Lily makes up her mind to forget him and resign herself to marry Staley on the tenth of June. Then, on the tenth of May, Mrs. Lexington hires a new chauffeur, and when he arrives he is—Pat France! A few days later he and Mrs. Lexington disagree when he refuses to wait on table, and he leaves the house. Lily leaves with him and they are married. Her mother tells her she is no child of hers and even refuses to give her her clothes. But Mr. Lexington presents her with a check for $200.

Pat gets a job in Roy Jetterson's garage and his wife, SADY, whom Lily detests on sight, does her best to be friendly. But Lily refuses to go to an evening party that she gives, and Pat's young sister, FLORENCE, says she is hurt. Florence works down town and Mrs. France helps her husband in their grocery store next door to the house. She expects Lily to do some share of the work, but Lily is not only helpless and untrained, but downright lazy. She marvels at Sady's Jetterson's willingness to work when she finally goes to one of her card parties in the afternoon, and sees how Sady does all her own serving and cooking. Pat's married sister, SARAH, is a guest when she and some of the other women bring their babies along to the party, and Lily is amused to see the end of the card game she looks up and sees Sady's chum, ELIZABETH ERTZ, standing in the doorway. Lily, who knows by sight only, is jealous of Elizabeth because she is Pat's former sweetheart.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Lily never had a really good look at Elizabeth Ertz before.

And now, as she stood in the doorway only a few feet from her, she was surprised to see that she was much prettier than she had thought her.

Her prettiness was the gentle kind that you have to look for twice to see at all—a prettiness that came from Elizabeth's wide, soft eyes and the shape of her gentle mouth. She looked as if she were as good as gold.

"You can just see that she never did a mean thing in her life," Lily said to herself, playing a low card when she should have played a high one. "And that's the meanest thing about her! She's a goody-goody!"

But whether Elizabeth was a goody-goody or not, she was very popular with the women who were playing cards.

Pat's sister, Sarah, jumped up the minute she saw her and hurried to her and kissed her on both cheeks.

"You know Elizabeth, don't you?" she asked Lily, who was sitting quietly in her chair while all the other guests gathered around the girl in the doorway.

"I'm sorry I haven't," Lily answered and found herself shaking hands with the girl Pat had almost married, a moment later.

"I've heard so many nice things about you—from Pat," Elizabeth said in the friendliest way imaginable. The corners of her lips went up in a smile.

But Lily not only smile back at her. "How do you do?" she asked, indifferently, barely touching the outstretched hand with her pointed fingers. She sat down again in her chair.

"I came to help Sady with the dishes," Elizabeth said to Sarah. "And then I thought if you wanted me to, I'd go over to your house with you. I met Pat the other day and he said you needed some rest, so if you need me for a night or two I'll be glad to stay. I just came off a case, but it wasn't very hard."

"Now, isn't that lovely of her—to come and help me out?" Sarah asked Lily a moment later, when Elizabeth vanished up the stairs to look after the babies who were howling in Sady's room. "She knows my children have had the measles and I haven't been able to get out. So she offers to come over to the house for a day or two. Who else would think of doing such a nice thing?"

"Well, she gets her board and room free, doesn't she, when she's at your house?" asked Lily, who refused to see anything good in the little nurse. "I think she's pretty clever, that's what I think!"

She did not sit down at the card table again, but ran upstairs for her coat. It was late, and she was bored to tears with the party, anyway. All these women making a fuss over a silly little nurse, as if she actually were somebody!

"They didn't make any fuss over ME!" she said to herself, pushing open the door of Sady's cool, pretty guest room, with its white furniture and flowered cretonne curtains and cushions.

"The Ertz" was standing beside the dresser. She had a square white tissue-paper package in her hands, and she was straightening a big bow of white satin ribbon on it.

She flushed up as Lily came into the room, and held the package out to her. "It was just going to bring this down to you," she said. "It's a wedding present for you and Pat." They without another word or look she went stiffly out of the room to the noisy babies. Almost at once there was miraculous silence.

On the way home Lily opened the package and looked at the gift. It was a colored etching—a picture of a Paris book-stall above the Seine river.

Lily knew practically nothing about art, but she saw that it was a good picture—full of sunlight and color.

"Well, I'm not going to have that thing about all my natural life, to remind Pat of her!" she thought and popped it down into a sewer that she happened to be passing, white ribbon and all.

"Where would I put it anyway?" she asked herself, disconsolately. "I haven't any home, and it doesn't look as if I ever am going to have one!"

She was most unhappy, going along the sidewalks in the spring twilight. Her high heels cut into her feet like knives and she was limping by the time she turned in at the gate of the little brown-stained house.

"I suppose we'll have to live here in this dump for years and years on top of years," she went on thinking, as she opened the door and went into the kitchen.

Pat's mother was standing beside the table, making biscuits. She looked up with her quick, cheerful smile. "Have a good time, dearie?" she asked.

Lily shook her head. "I should say I didn't," she answered with perfect truthfulness. "It was the most terrible party I ever went to in my life. All the women brought their brats along, and that Sady waited on table, and a nurse came in at the end of the afternoon talking about a case she had been on."

"That must have been Elizabeth Ertz," Pat's mother began mildly. But Lily cut her off short.

"It was," she said. "But for heaven's sake, let's not talk about her! All I've been hearing this afternoon is how wonderful she is. My stars! If she's so wonderful, why didn't Pat marry her?"

"Don't ask me. I never could understand men folk," Mrs. France said, shaking her head. "Pat's going to work on his piston ring down at the garage tonight. Would you like to walk down there with his lunch?"

She waved her hand toward a large package wrapped in brown paper that stood on the kitchen table. Lily shook her head.

"I couldn't walk that far on a bet," she sighed. "My feet are just killing me. . . . Florence take it when she comes."

"She's staying down town for supper," said Pat's mother. "I'll run down with it if you'll watch these biscuits for me. . . . I hate Pat to miss his regular meal time."

"All right, I'll watch them," the girl promised. "I won't forget them, don't worry."

But she did forget them. She forgot all about them two minutes after Mrs. France left the house with the package tucked into her shopping bag.

She went upstairs, wrapped in the gloomiest kind of thoughts about herself and Pat—about her life with Pat.

He had promised her that some day he would be as "well fixed" as the Jettersons were, if his ring sold when it was put on the market.

"But what does that mean?" Lily asked herself, thinking of the maid's house, the 10-cent store candies on the lunch table and the woman who had to bring their offerings with them to a card party or stay at home.

"And that's what I'm facing! That's the very best I'll get if I stick to Pat—pretty slim pickings," she told her bright image in the glass as she slipped out of her party dress and into a pink bungalow apron that Mrs. France had made for her.

She started down the stairs, wondering how long she would have to stay on here in the little house. Everybody in it was good to her, and they were pleasant people to live with.

"But it's not like your own home," she thought, remembering how she and Pat had not even been able to quarrel there without the whole family knowing about it. . . . There was something in having a house to yourselves even if you just wanted it to be able to row in privacy.

"Pat had no business to marry me until he had a home to take me to," she went on thinking, forgetting completely that she had practically begged Pat to marry her—forgetting that she had told him she didn't mind being poor as Job's turkey if only she were his wife!

On the hall table was a magazine that had come that afternoon. She picked it up and carried it into the little parlor. There she settled herself comfortably on the couch with all the cushions on it piled around her.

She was halfway through a love story of the Sahara desert when the smell of burning biscuits brought her back to her own world.

"Heavens to Hannah!" she cried, and flew to the kitchen. Clouds of smoke were pouring from the oven, and when she pulled out the pan of biscuits they were burned to a cinder. Somehow or other, they had caught on fire.

She was standing gazing at them helplessly when the front door opened and closed. Pat's mother came into the kitchen, wiping her eyes with her handkerchief as she came.

"Good gracious! The house is full of smoke. What's happened out here?" she asked. Then she saw the pan of charcoal that once had been beautiful biscuit dough.

"You forgot them!" she said curtly to Lily. "You forgot those biscuits!"

"I did. I never thought of them in time for supper," Mrs. France said, in that same brisk, quick way. "I'm just as sorry as I can be—"

"Sorry won't bring them back in time for supper," Mrs. France said, in that same brisk, quick way. "I'm just as sorry as I can be—"

"What were you thinking of to forget them?"

She pushed back her glasses and peered at Lily as if she were trying to discover what odd kind of woman she was. "I don't know how you're ever going to make a poor man's wife, if you don't wake up pretty soon!" she remarked, thoughtfully. "I thought I could teach you some things while you were here. But I can't—"

"No, because I'm not going to be here long enough for you to teach me anything!" Lily cut in, quickly and angrily. "I certainly am not going to spend another night under this roof, so get that firmly fixed in your mind!" She banged the kitchen door shut with such violence that it shook the house, and rushed up to her room to pack her things.

Twenty minutes later she appeared to Pat, who was at work on the piston ring in a room behind the garage. He was in his shirt sleeves, bending over a tiny object that he held under a light beside the round table where he had his materials.

The Theater

"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand," as the hymn says, is being matched by the procession of Paramount pictures released from "Chang" in Siam's tropical jungle to "Peaks of Destiny" in the glaciers of the high Alps. "Peaks of Destiny" a German Ufa production, made in Switzerland with the storm-wrecked Matterhorn towering many of the backgrounds, is not a direct lineal success to "Chang" and to such other back-to-nature pictures as "Stark Love," "Grass" and "Nanook of the North." Here a change is made and the love story and adventure elements are played up to equal the interest in the mountain scenery. But, like those, earlier pictures of man battling for life in unusual surroundings, "Peaks of Destiny" casts the atmosphere for a dominating role. The picture is just being exhibited in New York and is to be distributed over the country.

One lesson of such pictures as the foregoing is borne out by an examination of the seven pictures which have taken the seven medals of the Photoplay Magazine's award for the best picture produced each year. It is that a distorted jazz romance or a stressing of sex appeal is not necessary to a successful motion picture. George Bernard Shaw, one of the greatest of living dramatists, said the other day, that he was weary of the movies' emphasis on sex. "Peaks of Destiny" even has a triangular love conflict, but it is kept within proportions so that the majestic setting and stirring action get a chance. There was practically no love element in all the nature pictures mentioned. Of the seven pictures winning the medal, none placed emphasis on sex. "Beau Geste" which took last year's prize, was an adventure mystery with a bizarre setting with a theme of brotherly love. The two other winning pictures for Paramount were "Humoresque" in 1926, with a mother love theme and "The Covered Wagon" in 1923 with a historical theme.

FIRE LOSS SMALL

Damage estimated at $10 was caused by a roof fire at a residence at 32 Jefferson St., occupied by Earl Foster, colored, and owned by Julia Foster, colored, Kansas City, Mo., at 4:10 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The blaze was caused by sparks from the chimney igniting the shingle roof, burning a hole eight feet square. Firemen used chemicals to extinguish the flames.

Oh—flowers and candy? You shouldn't waste your money like that—why don't you save and get me something big for Christmas?

POSTMASTER URGES PROPER MAILING OF CHRISTMAS PARCELS

Seeking to develop the co-operation of mailers in the preparation of their Christmas mail, since such co-operation is considered an important and necessary factor in effecting its satisfactory movement, Postmaster C. S. Frazer is urging patrons to comply with the mailing conditions set forth below:

Postage—Prepay postage fully on all mail matter.

Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or indorsement reading: "Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary," together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to postage at the letter rate.

Limit of Weight and Size—Parcels may not exceed eight-four inches in length and girth combined nor weigh more than seventy pounds if for delivery within the first, second or third zone, or fifty pounds in any other zone.

Permissible Additions and Inclosures—Parcels may be marked "Do not open until Christmas," this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

Written greetings such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With best wishes," and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of description may be inclosed with third or fourth class (parcel-post) mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

Where To Mail Parcels—Uninsured parcels eight ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over eight ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office.

HUNTS PIGEONS ON AVENUE

CLEVELAND, O.—Police Chief Jacob Grahl has heard the call of the wild. He is to ally forth with his trusty rifle and an assistant in the person of Patrolman Peter Meryio on a pigeon hunt. But not far. The flock is reported on Euclid Avenue, just around from Cleveland's busiest district. Two years ago the chief enjoyed such a hunting excursion and believes that he is best qualified to take care of the flock this year, too.

CHILD SERIOUSLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHING CATCHES FROM STOVE

Edith May Fry, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fry, Upper Bellbrook Pike, was seriously burned when her clothes caught fire when she played too close to a stove at her home, Saturday night.

Edith May and her brothers and sisters had been left alone for a time by their parents, who were unaware of the child's burns until after she had been rushed to a doctor's office. Neighbors of Dr. Fry's heard the child's screams and found her with all her clothing ablaze.

The fire was quenched, but not before Edith May was burned about the head and over her entire body, except her feet and legs. Her hair was burned off and all the burns are of a serious nature. Dr. F. M. Chambliss, who attended her, believes the little girl inhaled the flames but hopes to save her life. She was removed to her home after the burns were dressed at Dr. Chambliss's office.

THE EXCEPTIONAL HEN

That a hen crosses the road for reasons of her own, and lays an egg a day, is all the information about her possessed by some members of the public. As a matter of fact, there is no record of a hen laying an egg a day for a full year. The standard as laid down by the poultry department of Ohio State University is 160 eggs in 365 days. The state average is about seventy eggs. Of course high grade hens do better. More than one hen on the records of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association has beaten the 300-egg mark in 365 days. But they are not common hens.

Egg production for the average hen is at the lowest point in November, when five eggs for the month is the standard requirement. This standard rises month by month to twenty-one eggs in April, then falls again.

This information is included on the Ohio State Poultry Calendar, distributed through the agricultural agents by the Ohio State University, to more than 3,000 Ohio poultry growers, who have registered with their agricultural agents and agreed to keep an accurate record of the performance of their flocks for 365 days. The calendar contains

TRUSTEES DISCUSS HOSPITAL CHANGES

Discussion of recommendations for changes made by the consulting medical staff of the O. S. and S. O. Home in the plans for the new Home hospital, took place at the monthly meeting of trustees, Saturday. The board discussed the slight changes in the plans for the $100,000 hospital which will be ironed out before the final acceptance of the plans.

Recommendations of the Ohio Voiture, Forty and Eight Society, drawn up at the meeting held at the Home last week, were not presented to the board for consideration. Only routine business otherwise confronted the board during the session.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON

A few days ago I had a conversation with a friend who is building a very beautiful and expensive home. Unfortunately she is situated so that she cannot visit her place every day while the house is in construction.

The building operations are all under contract, with careful specifications for every detail of the job. Among other things, the specifications call for heavy oak doors, oak staircase with iron balustrade and mahogany hand rail.

They call for special tile flooring, for certain kinds of French doors, and the best kind of plaster on the outside.

"A few days ago," said my friend, "I found that the contractor had put a pine staircase. Of course that had to come down. You see, I got there before he had had time to stain the steps oak. He thought he could 'get by'."

"A few days later I found this man was trying to put a pine door instead of an oak one in place. When it was stained no one could tell the difference," remarked one of the carpenters, innocently.

"Again someone was trying to 'get by'."

"I found that none of the French doors fitted. In the rainy season I would be deluged with rain inside my rooms."

"What do you expect to do with those windows?" I asked one of the men.

"Well," he answered, "the people won't get in until summer. Those windows are all right in fair weather. By the time the rain comes we can say they have shrunk."

"He expected to 'get by'."

One of the most frequent phrases we hear now-a-days is "I think we can get by."

This seems to be one of the tendencies of the age in which we live. Everyone wants to "get by" and having been able to do this, one sits back in prideful admiration of his being able to "get the best of the other fellow."

One has a good deal of commendation for the Rotarians, who have lately been expending time and money in a propaganda of honest dealing and patriotic endeavor.

Until we eliminate from our vocabulary the phrase "get by" and substitute for it "honest work for honest pay," the sooner we will get back to that "normalcy" of which President Harding told us.

In the meantime every man is suspecting the other man and keeping this motto in his mind if not in his office.

Memo: The slogan of modern business is, "Do unto others as they would do unto you—but do them first."

FAITH AND PRAYER NECESSARY PASTOR TELLS UNION CROWD

"Are We Failing Christ?" the Rev. D. A. Sellers asked the Sunday night audience of the combined Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, at the former church. The preacher took his text from the Gospel of Mark, ninth chapter and twenty-third verse, concerning the failure of the disciples to cast out an "evil spirit" which was easily cast out in the presence of Christ himself.

The disciples inquired as to the reason of their failure and Jesus pointed out to them that it was their unbelief and lack of prayer. Applying this "failure" to Christian life and work today the speaker continued and concluded his message with the example of Paul as a true Christian who did not fail Jesus Christ. The Rev. Mr. Sellers connected the words of Christ: "All things are possible to him that be-

SEVENTIETH CONGRESS IN SESSION

PRECEDENT BROKEN AS SENATORS FIGHT FOR ELECTED SEATS

New Senate Hostile To
Smith And Vane—May Bar Pair

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A precedent-shattering political battle confronted the newly convening senate today over the efforts of Senators-elect Frank L. Smith, of Illinois and William S. Vane, of Pennsylvania to occupy the senatorial seats they won in the 1926 election.

The two senators-elect faced a hostile senate, eager to bar the door in their faces because of slush fund charges. An International News Service poll has shown that a clear majority of the senate opposes seating either newcomer. As a result, they may be barred at the door or denied their oaths and excluded later.

Leaders of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition, opposing the seating of both men, were undecided this morning over their method of procedure. One group desired to bar both Smith and Vane without further delay, basing their action on the reports of the Reed slush fund committee that huge sums were spent in their behalf at the primaries last fall. A second group suggested both men be given a new hearing before a senate committee, with further division of opinion over which committee should conduct the inquiry.

Administration leaders meanwhile sought to patch up a truce until tomorrow afternoon, so that the senate can be organized today and President Coolidge can deliver his message to congress tomorrow.

There was no definite assurance of an armistice, as a single objection, under the senate's rules, can block the transaction of all other business until after both the Smith and Vane cases are settled.

Regardless of which ouster plan is followed, it was considered certain that neither Smith nor Vane would be allowed to take their oath of office today. The opposition unanimously agreed on a plan to challenge both men as soon as Vice President Dawes attempts to swear them into office.

Thereafter, the senate will be declared until tomorrow the senate organized and President Coolidge invited to address congress. One objection however can start immediate hostilities over seating both men.

The charges against Smith are that $50,000 was spent in nominating him, of which $20,325 came from public utility heads while he was serving as chairman of the Illinois Public Service Commission. The Vane charges are that $800,000 was spent in nominating him, including a $50,000 contribution, the donor of which was hidden in secrecy.

SHOOTING PUZZLES CLEVELAND POLICE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Shot down as he stepped from his automobile, which he had just driven home early today from a banquet given in honor of Valerio Valeriani, Italian consul, Anton Caruso, 29, was reported near death in a hospital this morning.

The victim was able to tell police that a robber fired at him as he stepped to the floor of the garage, but detectives were puzzled by reports of several persons who heard the shots, that they also heard a woman scream just before the shooting.

BURNS ISSUES FULL DENIAL FOUR WOMEN PERISH WHEN HOTEL BURNS

Seamen Washed From Greek Vessel By Giant Wave
—Coast Guards Aid Ship In Distress
—Storm Worst In Years

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 5.—Four women are dead and a fifth is expected to die, from injuries suffered early today when fire gutted the Buckingham Hotel annex. Seven other persons were seriously injured in the fire which caused loss estimated at $180,000.

All of the other seventy-five guests and employees in the hotel when the fire started are believed safe.

The dead: Mrs. Luther Conn, 75, fatally injured when she jumped from the fourth floor.

Miss Emma L. Susanka, 45, killed when she slipped from a rope to the ground.

Miss Bessie Grohe, 33. A woman believed to be Miss Ella O'Meara, 50.

Thirty-two deaf and dumb children, inmates of the Central Institution for the deaf, were secured. Fire department officials described the hotel as a "trap."

The blaze started on an upper floor and spread rapidly cutting off the escape of many guests who were finally rescued by firemen.

FOUR SAILORS DEAD, SHIPS IN PERIL IN ATLANTIC STORM

Seven Others Injured In $180,000 Buckingham Hotel
Blaze In St. Louis—Seventy-Five
Guests In Annex Escape

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Four sailors were dead, three steamers were being pounded to pieces off the North Carolina coast and other ships were reported in peril early today as the worst storm the Atlantic has experienced in years began to subside. Five deaths in New York City and nearby New Jersey were traced indirectly to the storm.

Four sailors aboard the Greek steamship Kyzikos, formerly the American steamship Paragua, were washed into the sea off Cape Hatteras when a mountainous wave swept over the ship. Life guards rescued twenty-four men aboard the Kyzikos near Kitty Hawk, N. C., and also saved thirty-six members of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Cibao off Hatteras Inlet when the vessels were driven ashore by a seventy-mile northeast gale.

Coast guardsmen were attempting to reach a third steamer, unidentified, which was reported ashore north of Hatteras Inlet.

The thirty-six sailors taken off the Cibao were fastened to the end of ropes and towed ashore by motorboats through four miles of raging surf. It was the most thrilling rescue ever made off the North Carolina coast. Eight of the men had lost consciousness when dragged ashore. This method of rescue was necessitated because the coast guard's non-sinkable motorboat was thrown against the side of the steamer and nearly dashed to pieces.

Life savers from Kill Devil Hill rescued the survivors on the Kyzikos in a more protected spot. Both ships were bound for Baltimore.

The schooner Zebedee Viff sent out distress signals off Boston. Communication along the Virginia and Carolina coasts is crippled.

In New York, the first snowstorm of the winter caused great hardship. Lodging houses were filled with the homeless and unemployed.

MRS. LILLIENDAHL ON WITNESS STAND FOR MURDER CHARGE

Widow Testifies In Own
Behalf As End
Nears

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, on trial here with Willis Beach, her alleged paramour, for the murder of her husband, today took the witness stand in her own defense.

Beach concluded his testimony Saturday, and Robert H. McCarter, attorney for the widow, declared today that he had only two or three witnesses to be called.

Mrs. Lilliendahl, it is anticipated, will tell again the story she told the police at the time of the murder and has repeated since, namely, that two negroes shot Dr. Lilliendahl as he sat beside her in their automobile, driving through a lonely lane near Hammonton.

Many of the witnesses introduced so far by the defense testified they saw two negroes in the vicinity of the murder scene on the day the doctor, who was a narcotic specialist, was killed.

McCarter voiced the opinion that the case might go to the jury by tonight.

The defense is absolutely confident of victory, and betting odds here are twelve and fifteen to one for acquittal. The odds on acquittal were five to one when the trial started last Monday.

POLICEMAN KILLED FOILING BANDITS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 5.—Northwestern Ohio police authorities today were making every effort to apprehend three bandits who shot and killed Patrolman Henry A. Clemens here early Sunday morning when he discovered them attempting to rob a gasoline filling station. The officer was shot through the heart.

Several persons who were passing the scene in a bus, said they saw three men leap into an automobile and drive away, following the shooting. The cash register of the oil station had been rifled and a small amount of money taken.

ONE DEAD, FIVE HURT AS GUNMEN RAID CABARET

Waiter Slain — Guests
Wounded — Suspect
Captured

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—One man was killed and five persons were wounded early today when a band of armed men, after invading the Parody cabaret, walked into a crowd of dancers and opened fire with sawed-off shotguns.

Harry Smith, a waiter, received the full charge from one gun, the top of his head being blown away. Five seriously injured guests were rushed to the hospital.

There were six members in the gunman crew. According to witnesses, two men stood guard at the door while the other four walked into the crowd and opened fire. A scene of wildest confusion followed.

According to one witness, the gunmen were looking for Dave Palinsky, owner of the cabaret, the leader of the gang was heard to say "There he is," pointing at Palinsky, just before the firing started.

Other witnesses reported over-hearing the command "stick 'em up," and believed the guests were to be robbed. Opinion is divided on whether the men sought to assassinate Palinsky or rob him of the receipts.

An unidentified man, who is believed to have been one of the bandits, was captured when trapped in the rush for an exit. He refused to give his name, but denied any part in the shooting.

AURORA, Ill., Dec. 5.—That Aurora and Kane County in general, will have none of Chicago's gang rule, was indicated here today when citizens declared that vice resorts alleged to have been operating under direction of Chicago gangsters, were closed "tighter than a drum."

The drive against the "backwash from Chicago's underworld," was undertaken in Kane County by Circuit Judge John K. Newhall, who invoked his seldom-used peace powers when he was told the Capone faction of Chicago had extended its power by establishing the Maple Inn near the Elgin Country Club.

Judge Newhall called a meeting of Chicago officials and outlined his drive to "free Kane County of Chicago gang terrorism." As a result twenty-five roadhouses were closed by Sheriff L. L. Uch during the next twenty-four hours.

CHILD IS FATALLY INJURED BY AUTO

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 5.—Funeral arrangements were being completed today for four-year-old Daerel Miller, fatally hurt in an auto accident Sunday in front of the Miller home at Shanesville, near here. The boy was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller.

The accident occurred when the lad, running around the rear of a parked auto, was hit by a car said to have been driven by James Friend, living near Bellefontaine. The child, whose skull was fractured, lived about ten minutes after being hit.

EX-HUSBAND BEING SOUGHT IN BOMBING

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Authorities today sought Henry A. Grady of Montgomery, Ala., in connection with the bombing of the home of his estranged wife, Mrs. Grady and her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Brooks, told police Grady had threatened his wife when she left him in Cincinnati.

Grady formerly worked in a powder factory and was thoroughly familiar with explosives, Mrs. Grady said.

DOTY ARRIVES FOR FINAL RELEASE

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 5.—Bennett J. Doty, of Biloxi, Miss., whose adventures as a member of the French Foreign Legion read like a tale of fiction, arrived here today on a cattle boat for "official demobilization."

Doty was ordered released from duty after serving part of an eight year sentence in a military prison for desertion. He had originally been sentenced to death by a court martial, but this sentence was commuted to imprisonment.

ACCIDENT IS FATAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A service revolver dropped by Patrolman Charles Dowling in a Jamaica restaurant accidentally exploded and resulted in the death early today of Miss Betty Broderick, 30, of New York.

Dowling was held for questioning.

GEORGE REMUS DROPS ORIGINAL PLAN TO TESTIFY AT TRIAL

Says Psychological Plan Is To Give Own Sum-
mation

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5.—Instead of telling his own story from the witness stand, as he had announced repeatedly that he would do, George Remus, on trial for the killing of his wife, Imogene, is now planning to depend on a dramatic plea to the jury to save himself from the electric chair.

"Psychology" is the reason for Remus' change in his plans, he asserted today. If he took the stand, testifying for several days, and subsequently made the closing address to the jury he fears that the summation would be in the nature of an anti-climax.

That's why, the theatrical Remus explained, "that I may not take the stand at all. Remus must take confidence of the psychological effect upon the jury."

Prosecutor Charles P. Taft said Remus does not dare take the stand for fear of the cross-examination to which he would be subjected.

Remus' eyes sparkled and he exuded enthusiasm as he portrayed himself in the role of "Remus the lawyer" making an impassioned plea for his life.

"I would be at my best," he said proudly. "You know Remus has had twenty-one years experience before juries as a lawyer. You will pardon me if I say I have been quite successful in dealing with juries. And I like the looks of this jury."

Remus declined to comment upon a statement issued by Ruth Remus, daughter of the slain Imogene Holmes Remus, in which she characterized her stepfather as "a liar who is trying to rob my darling mother of her reputation as he did her life." She also said that she feared if Remus is acquitted he would not "edify" the statement by discussing it.

The state prepared to subject George Connors, Remus' former partner in their gigantic liquor operations to a rigorous cross-examination when he resumes the stand today.

CLEVELAND BOMB EXPLOSION BLAMED ON BOOTLEG FEUDS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—The second mysterious bomb explosion in Cleveland within a week, today was attributed by detectives to bootleg feuds. The latest explosion, which occurred early Sunday, wrecked the front of a two-story brick building in the East End, shook the entire neighborhood and endangered lives of eight persons sleeping in the building.

Immediately following Sunday's explosion, two night watchmen at a factory across the street from the scene of the blast, fought a gun battle with five men, who finally fled in a large touring car.

Mrs. Marie Vagariello, who conducted a pool room and confectionery on the first floor of the building which she owned, told police she knew of no enemies. She said she believed it had been a case of mistaken address.

A similar explosion occurred Thursday night in Euclid Avenue. No one was injured in either blast.

HUNTERS BACK HOME ARMED, BUT MINUS GAME

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Alphonse Capone, otherwise "Scarface Al," notorious Chicago vice leader, was back in town today after a week's absence in the "north woods." A score of Capone's henchmen trailed him back to his Cicero headquarters.

"Scarface" and his lieutenants dropped from sight suddenly eight days ago when the recent gang flareup got particularly "hot" for the Capone-Lombardo faction. It was announced that Capone and his boys had gone into the north woods "for a much needed rest and to hunt."

They brought back no game, according to observers who saw them trek in. But, it was added, the absence of game was not due to the fact that the hunters were not well supplied with arms and ammunition.

Vigilance on the part of police has caused a temporary cessation of the gang warfare. The series of mysterious bombings that kept the underworld on taut nerves has subsided, for the present at least. All known gangsters have been rounded up and gambling and vice resorts have been closed.

Whether or not Capone's reappearance on the "front" will be the signal for a resumption of hostilities, remains to be seen. Vice and riot squads, organized during the latest outbreak, stand ready, it was said at police headquarters, to get into action at a moment's notice.

OUTCOME UNCERTAIN AS SOLONS GATHER; G. O. P. IN MAJORITY

Insurgency And Politics Make For Tempestuous Session—Neither Side Can Claim Balance Of Power

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Boiling with insurgency and seething with politics, big and little, the new seventieth congress met here today for a tempestuous session that will run straight into the national conventions next June. Uncertainty and uneasiness filled the air as the session got under way, for not even the so-called leaders cared to predict with any degree of confidence just what may come out of this session.

All the elements that contribute to a cantankerous and boisterous sessions are present. This session may be the incubator that will produce leadership is titular rather than actual.

In the senate, the Republicans have a paper majority of one vote; the session will produce any vast amount of legislation to add to the already over-burdened statute books. Sessions convening on the eve of presidential elections rarely do. Neither do sessions wherein the parties are about evenly divided—the membership cannot spare time from fighting to perform the groundwork that must nurture a constructive program.

Taxes will be reduced from $225,000,000 to $250,000,000, the navy will be strengthened, some sort of a farm relief bill may be pushed through, a measure of relief will be furnished to the hard-hit flood sufferers in the lower Mississippi Valley, and the usual appropriation bill will be passed—but beyond that the leaders say nothing. Speculation is a hazardous business in a congress so split by factions and so ridden by blocs as the seventieth.

The senate, as usual, confronted a jam at the outset. It closed last March in the grip of a filibuster, and it seemed today that it might begin where it left off.

The controversy over the seating of Senators-elect Vane of Pennsylvania, and Smith of Illinois, was topmost when the gravel fell. The only seeming certainty in this notorious fight was that neither man would be seated, although the time and method of the ouster proceedings remained obscure. The situation is such that the senate might dispose of the matter in two hours, or two months, depending upon the tactics employed.

PROFESSIONAL DRY LEADERS GATHER TO IMPRESS CONGRESS

Coolidge, Al Smith And
"Wet" Churches Targets Of Talk

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Professional Prohibition and Reform forces of the country convened in the capital today to map out a 1928 program and to impress upon the new congress that the forces of prohibition are still militant and powerful.

The three days meeting got off to a running start at a mass meeting at which an attack was launched against all who do not line up, letter for letter, with the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

President Coolidge, Al Smith, "flaming youth," the "wet" churches, and the administration in general were scored by the speakers.

Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National Union Committee for law enforcement and the International Reform Federation, leveled his guns on Mr. Coolidge.

"Any man whose strongest words of denunciation after being assured of the next Republican nomination for president are, 'I do not intend to run,' is no fit candidate for standard bearer of the country's dry voters and those who favor strict law enforcement," he said.

"What the country needs is a man who will come out and say what he means."

Governor Smith and Senator Elect William S. Vane of Pennsylvania, were characterized by Howard as "two political thieves."

"It is time that something cracked in New York," he declared, "where a Tammany politician is attempting to capitalize his presidential ambition by preaching disloyalty to the constitution."

"It is time that something cracked in Pennsylvania, where a gangster politician is attempting to lift himself by his own bootstraps from the garbage can of Philadelphia's political cesspool into the senate of the United States."

"It is time that something cracked in Washington, where a Republican administration, representing the churches of the north in a political action, is allowing the enemies of the republic to fire on the flag and bore bugholes in the constitution and allow it to leak run like a gravel sieve over the nation."

NO ARMY CHANGES PLANNED THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—While a big fight is under way to build up the American Navy, the army probably will undergo little change at the hands of congress.

Rep. Barbour (R) of California, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee of the house handling army affairs, predicted that the standing army would be kept at 118,750 men. Barbour led the successful fight last year to increase the army beyond the budget recommendation.

Greater appropriations for aircraft, housing and ammunition reserves will be asked.

SEEK AUTO DRIVER ON MURDER CHARGE

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 5.—Police today were searching for the driver of an automobile which last night struck and killed John Klug, 45, restaurant worker, at Rossford, just outside the city.

Reports immediately after the accident had it that occupants of the automobile, after hitting Klug, stopped, removed his body from the bumper and laid it on the road. Then the heavy machine was run over the prostrate man and sped away with lights off, according to the report.

How You Can Safely Eat whatever You Fancy

Do you remember the school days long ago when your appetite was good and you could "eat anything"? Perhaps you yearn for a digestion like that now? You can have it, and easily too! XENIANS SEE NEW FORD TUDOR AT AGENCY SHOWROOM MONDAY

Xenians obtained their first glimpse of the new Ford automobile Monday when a Tudor sedan was placed on exhibition for one day at the Bryant Motor Sales, Market and Green Sts.

The Ford agency will remain open until 11 o'clock Monday night as the model will only be in Xenia one day before being shipped to Piqua, officials announced.

Crowds of interested visitors thronged the agency's show rooms Monday for the first complete public description of the new line of Ford automobiles, and learned the details of the car which is to succeed the famous Model T Ford after more than nineteen years.

Visitors kept the local sales force busy throughout the day pointing out the new features of the car.

On all sides were heard comments of surprise at the striking change in the appearance of the new model. The low, rakish lines, the striking new colors and the luxurious equipment of the new automobiles, made a marked impression on the crowds of visitors.

The new Tudor sedan is long, wide and roomy. Narrow pillars and new door construction give unusual vision. Both front seats fold forward, giving easy access to the rear seat. There is also ample space between seats.

Details of the performance, however, as they were unfolded by attendants, were even more impressive to the visitors. Visitors were especially pleased with the speed, pick-up and ease of handling of the new cars, and with the fact they are equipped with four-wheel brakes, shock absorbers and standard gear shift transmission of the type used in cars in a much higher priced class.

Ford factories at Detroit and branch plants in other sections of the United States are now preparing for capacity production and it is expected that all dealers will be able to meet the demand in full within the next few weeks.

SHERIFF ATTEMPTS TO IDENTIFY LOOT STOLEN BY SUSPECT

Sheriff Ohmer Tate is still at tempting to establish ownership of numerous articles believed to have been stolen, discovered at the farm home of George Jacobs, 34, fugitive from justice, who was returned to Hamilton to face a charge in that city.

Authorities declared that ten bushels of corn, stolen by Jacobs the day before his arrest, had been taken from a neighboring farm one mile from Jacobs' residence, tented by a colored family.

Sheriff Tate is awaiting identification of nine chickens of different breeds; two auto tires for a Ford car, one of Lancaster make and the other a Kelly tire; a raincoat, a woman's winter dress coat, and a pair of light top Endicott-Johnson man's shoes.

Attempts to identify the owner of an Overland coach, which Jacobs admitted he had stolen, have been unsuccessful.

THREE KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

SANDUSKY, O., Dec. 5.—Coroner A. R. Grierson today had rendered a verdict of accidental death in the killing of Russell Baumhardt, Paul Lindauer, and Otto Ronsky, Lorain youths, by a New York Central Express train at Vermillion, twenty-two miles east of Sandusky, late Saturday night.

The young men had been visiting in Vermillion and were returning home in a closed car. Apparently they failed to hear the approaching train. Ronsky's body was picked up near the scene of the crash, while the bodies of Baumhardt and Lindauer were found on the locomotive after it came to a stop a half a mile away.

The bodies were taken to Lorain yesterday.

His assistant, H. L. Keylor, is a soloist of considerable attainment and is said to be a thoroughly capable musician and entertainer, whose versatility adds much to the program.

An evening with these two gifted entertainers is said to be in reality a delightful trip through "Fun-Land," "Music-Land," and "Mystery-Land."

MAY EXHUME BODY OF BARN FIRE VICTIM

Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, coroner, may exhume the body of a man found in the ruins of the Edward Holman barn, near Osborn, destroyed by fire last Monday.

The coroner hopes a further examination may show whether the arms and legs were cut from the torso found in the barn ruins and thus determine whether the man was murdered.

The fact that the heavy arm and leg bones are missing, whereas they would be most likely to resist the heat, supports a theory that the body was dismembered before being abandoned in the barn. In that event his slayer may have fired the barn to cover traces of the crime.

Dr. Chambliss has not been able to connect the disappearance of William Buzard, 52, from his home in Brookville November 25, with the Osborn case.

MAYOR'S COURT

HEARING SET

Richard Aiken, colored, this city, will be given a hearing before Mayor John W. Prugh Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock on a charge of assault, following a quarrel with Walter Evans, colored, over payment of a gas bill, Sunday.

Evans rooms at Aiken's residence and the two have been having difficulty for some time over payment of Evans' share of the gas bill, police learned.

Aiken and Evans met on Church St. Sunday morning and after an argument, Aiken is reported to have hurled rocks at Evans, which struck him on the breast and hand, but inflicted no injury.

Evans was charged with refusal to pay part of the bill. Aiken pleaded not guilty to assault before Mayor Prugh Monday morning and was released, pending a hearing.

Chaney was ordered to appear in court after striking the aged man in the mouth with his fist, cutting his lip, Sunday afternoon.

The two are neighbors. Harness became enraged Sunday, claiming a group of small boys were annoying him by throwing rocks at his house. Chaney defended the children, contending the boys were merely trying to chase away some pigeons from the roof of the Harness home.

CASES DISMISSED

Charges of petit larceny against Wilbur Toner, 26, and Harley Toner, 19, were dismissed by Mayor Prugh Monday, following their arrest Sunday night by Patrolman J. E. Craig and Charles Thompson and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman.

The pair was caught in the act of removing a load of junk from the rear of Gordon Bros. garage. One of the garage proprietors noticed them loading junk on a push cart and notified police.

The officers surrounded the rear of the premises, cutting off all avenues of escape, and the two Toners, trying to run away, ran into the arms of police. Gordon declined to prosecute. Wilbur is an uncle of Harley Toner.

BOND FORFEITED

William Read, Lebanon, O., arrested Sunday by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding, forfeited $5 appearance bond.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

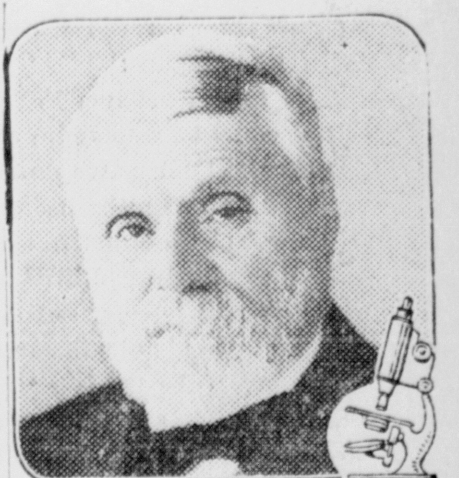

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with psyllium. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write: "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

SUPREMACY OF NEWSPAPERS

Marconi, radio wizard, thus compares the field of radio and newspapers:

"The newspaper has this distinct advantage: It is a record. You cannot paste radio announcements in a scrapbook; newspapers put the news down in black and white.

"Of course, the radio has its advantages. A radio impulse can travel around the world in one-seventh of a second, and news can be transmitted almost instantaneously."

The newspaper cannot give the world the splendid musical program available through the radio; but the press, he feels, will always be the big power in the world for expressing opinion by rulers and statesmen, and for the big events of news.

DOUBLE PENALTY FOR "GUN-TOTIN" CRIMINALS

There is a lot of talk about how to reduce the crime wave and one of the first suggestions is to prohibit the ownership of firearms.

This would remove protection which the private citizen has against burglary, robbery and assault, but it would not prevent the criminal from securing firearms. His business is lawful and it would not bother him at all to go a step further and procure arms contrary to the law, smuggled in from other sources.

The fact that the private citizen could not lawfully buy arms would make the work of the thug just that much easier.

The logical way to reduce crime is to assure speedy punishment, also to provide that the use of a gun or any other form of concealed weapon in committing a crime should demand an increased sentence, with no possibility of probation or suspended sentence.

The average American citizen enjoys target practice and he enjoys hunting. It is healthy sport and recreation. Why should he be prohibited the use of a gun on the theory that this will prevent the use of guns by criminals? Why not make the penalty doubly severe on the criminal using a gun, instead of penalizing a law-abiding citizen who uses a gun for legitimate purposes.

AVOIDING GRIEF

If there is one thing that the American people dislike, it is standing in line. If you watch a row of people lined up, before a ticket window, they always look uncomfortable. They can not talk pleasantly to their neighbors if they see them in that line, but they look as if they were the victims of some great grievance, and as if they wanted to hit someone responsible for this indignity.

If the amount of time wasted by the American people in standing in line in post-offices, stores, etc., at the Christmas season were computed, it would be an astonishing amount. And most of that wasted time is unnecessary.

It can be avoided by the very simple and easy habit of buying stuff early. Those who get their gifts bought and shipped two or three weeks before the holiday, will not in most places have to wait much.

CELEBRATING WHAT?

Russia has been celebrating the 10th anniversary of its communist government. It has no doubt demonstrated that a government can run on communist lines, but that does not prove that it will make the people happy.

The people can get rid of the inequalities of wealth, if they want to, and if they will consent that everyone shall suffer indefinitely from poverty. But if any inducement is to be given to people to work and save money and become more efficient, they must feel sure of being rewarded for their labors. Capitalism involves inequalities of wealth, but it gives everyone a chance to get a reward for what he does.

The Way of the World

A great deal of harm is done by that loose talk which claims everything in sight. We read that a French statesman quotes Nietzsche as having written this: "All that is noble in European sentiment, taste, and manners has been invented in France." Of course that is not true and no longer is it even a popular misconception. So many things are accepted which have no basis in fact.

The Puritans are held up to high school and college students as great lovers of democracy. They are supposed to have hated kings and social classes. They didn't at all. They were aristocrats in temperament and in their ideas of government. They would only let property holders vote. On the whole they appear to have been pretty nobbish. They thought a poor man ought to know his place. They were strong for humility—for the other fellow.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

There persists the widespread belief that you can get something for nothing. Many people want to learn to talk more smoothly and effectively. They complain, sometimes bitterly, because of their inability to express themselves adequately. We all suffer from common laziness. If we want to learn to talk we must learn language. To learn language we must study it. Words are to be adopted, made our own, one by one.

A great public speaker, talking to a young man, said: "Take a new word for your exercise every night. For fifteen minutes walk up and down the floor or somewhere else and learn that word. Use it in a sentence. Make that word your own. Some day, when you want to, you will not have to think and reckon and wait for it. It will come quickly to your tongue and say 'here am I'."

TRY THE DICTIONARY

Speaking of words, Franklin was not too busy with all his affairs to study the dictionary. He learned words by hard, plugging study.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A tabloid in search of a trick story, assigned two reporters to scour the city armed with twenty dollar bills, try to get them changed, and find out just how many people were overly suspicious. The result was that no one would change them. The reporters would offer the bills for five dollars or for one dollar bills, offering the excuse that money in that denomination was so necessary as to be worth fifteen dollars or more loss. No one accepted. Then they offered them for a nickel and finally for a penny. Some of those accosted grew angry and called policemen.

The paper commented on the story satirically, pointing out the stupidity of supposed canny New Yorkers in passing up a rare opportunity such as this. Perhaps, at least in the instances of people refusing to make even change, with no gain—this is so.

But for the rest of the cases, the situation seems just the reverse. It requires no great brain to realize that an offer of twenty dollars for a nickel can scarcely be made in good faith. And the fact that two reporters, out for a feature story, were an exception, alters the rule not a whit. The man who had given a nickel for the twenty would have been nine-tenths dollars and ninety-five cents richer. For all of that, he might also have been a well-eyed idiot.

Ruth Elder's engagement at the Capitol for a week served to show what a wise young man Lindbergh was in refusing all theatrical contracts. The Capitol audience applauded her vigorously, but they left the theatre, I am sure, considerably disillusioned about this national heroine.

She knew nothing of the stage and apparently those in charge either didn't have time, or care enough to state her appearance to the best advantage. What she did do was to come out, clad in bright red sweater and golf socks, tan plus fours with a wad of make-up on her face, so as to detract from her natural prettiness and deliver a stilted speech. This last, apparently, was lifted in whole from a newspaper account of Ruth's flight, for it certainly was never meant for elocution. Ruth struggled through it long complexly the tone of a school girl at graduation and with gestures inferior to many a post girl.

She hadn't learned her piece so well, either, and so she had to halt and blush and stammer, quite a number of times. This finished, she reappeared later, as a grand finale to the act she had been part of in a ridiculous little wooden airplane, swung clumsily in the air by wires, and a few minutes she had lost all the dignity an (almost) transatlantic flight had given her.

Another bad feature about the act was that George Haldeman was wholly omitted. Ruth, of course, was the glamorous half of the adventurous pair. But after all, it was Haldeman who piloted the plane; Haldeman who navigated it. That he was thus slighted and Ruth, who was technically little more than a burden in the flight, raised to such prominence and praise, will not help to endear Miss Elder either.

KELLYGRAMS
by Fred C. Kelly
Wayside Observations

Sheep, pigs, goats, cows and chickens roam about pretty much at random in Ireland. Wire fences are few and the stone fences are not always high enough to confine an enterprising animal. Hence these various creatures go about where they please. Even in little towns one sees flocks of sheep standing picturesquely in the middle of the street, looking around as if waiting for the signal of a traffic cop.

Because these sheep and goats are allowed to go where they please, the roadside is free from objectionable weeds with sod like a private lawn. The goats give just the right touch to this kind of scenery.

The sheep have marks corresponding to cattle brands painted on their wool, to indicate their ownership. But I don't know how anybody knows his own goat. An average goat never seems to me to have much individuality unless you know him real well.

Since the winters are mild, sheep are expected to find their own food, and are not fed in the barnyard at all. Food is each hen's personal problem. She must wander about and select whatever seems best suited to her purposes. And she must use it through the handling of them, and who knows their dangers. X-rays in the hands of any but qualified operators have been responsible for very great damage to the face.

If you do not know of any skin specialists in your locality, ring up your County Medical Society and ask for a list.

Diabetes
Mr. G.—If you are a diabetic, you should be under the care of a specialist, and not be trying to manage your own case.
No, it is not necessary to use special diabetic foods. Many physicians teach their patients to but razor-backs—much more vivacious than ours. There are the pigs from which come the Irish bacon famous in song and story.

GENTLEMEN, BE SEATED!

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Protect Your Eyes Against the Harm of Winter Glare and Squinting

The care of your eyes is a special problem in the winter 'snow' months. The glare of reflected light from the snow is even more of a strain on them than direct rays of the summer sun. You know how mountain climbers find it so essential to put on dark glasses when they have passed the snow line.

You cannot count on the protection of hat against this kind of glare, for it comes from the ground up. Its chief danger is in making you squint, and whenever you do that, fine lines radiate out from your eyes. The very young person can squint, and as soon as she comes in out of the glare, the lines all fade away. But, as a woman gets older, even as early in life as 25, the skin will not of its own accord grow smooth again. Crowsfeet get their beginning in just that way. I believe that every woman should smooth again. Crowsfeet get their beginning in just that way. I believe that every woman should smooth again. Crowsfeet get their beginning in just that way. I believe that every woman should smooth again.

Shrivelled eyelids and crowsfeet are unknown to the woman who has formed the excellent habit of patting her anti-wrinkle cream into the thin, easily lined skin around her eyes.

Since the eyes get dirty in winter from the smoke and dirt that fills the air, I advise frequently washing them, either by dashing cold water into them or with an eye cup containing a restful, cleansing lotion. A mild solution of boric acid is excellent for this purpose.

You should take special pains with your eye make-up in order to make it protective against drying winds. Never powder your eyelids. The powder gets into the little creases and helps to make them into wrinkles. Any make-up around your eyes should be soft, both for beauty and protection. The best eye shadow comes in cream form. Or, if you do not use eye shadow leave a very, very light film of your face cream on your eyelids. I have seen the best results in salon treatments from using prepared eye shadow cream, the cream being mixed with a little cream with dry eye shadow. The soft effect is most flattering to your eyes and complexion and you can be sure that your eyelids are not growing prematurely aged.

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Shortcake summer fare? Why, of course, strawberry, raspberry, peach, etc. But it may be an all-year-around dish if you like it, and who does not? In the following menu we will use it for dessert and include several of the recipes that may be made in the cold months.

Cream of Spinach Soup, Crackers
Lamb Chops, French Fried Potatoes, Avocado or Calavo Salad, Coffee

Today's Recipes

Avocado Salad—Calavo is the California name for the avocado, or alligator pear. Cut in halves and serve one-half to each person on lettuce leaves decorated with strips of pimento. Serve with a little salt, lemon juice or French dressing. It is to be eaten with a spoon, like melon.

Cocoanut Orange Shortcake — Pare oranges and remove pulp in sections with a sharp knife. Place between and on top of biscuit, sprinkling each layer with powdered sugar. On top sprinkle shredded cocoanut.

Peach Shortcake — Drain the juice from one can of sliced peaches. Add an equal quantity of sugar, stir over the fire until dissolved and boil three minutes. Add two tablespoons of butter and serve as a hot sauce for the shortcake. Arrange the peach slices between and on top of biscuits. Garnish with whipped cream.

Fruit Shortcake — Two cups flour, half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons shortening, four teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar, three-fourths cup milk.

Sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening, and add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Pat one-fourth inch thick. Cut in two-inch rounds. Place half of rounds on a baking pan, spread with butter and place the remaining halves on top. Bake in a hot oven (440° to 450° degrees F.) ten to twelve minutes. Separate halves of cake. Spread with butter and place a spoonful of fruit between and on top. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

Prune Shortcake—one and one-half cups water, two tablespoons butter, half cup sugar, one and one-half cups prunes.

Cover prunes with sugar and water in a casserole and bake one and one-half hours. When cool remove pits from prunes, add butter and reheat to serve on biscuits.

Fig Shortcake—Two cups of water, one cup sugar, twenty figs. Cut figs into quarters and simmer in hot water to cover until tender. Add sugar and cook until dissolved. Serve hot between biscuits.

Five eggs whites, two teaspoons powdered sugar, two teaspoons cinnamon, one pound grated almonds, juice of one lemon. Add sugar to stiffly beaten egg whites. Stir in same direction one-half hour. Add remaining ingredients. Roll one-fourth inch thick, using half flour and half granulated sugar. Cut out small stars, using star-shaped cookie cutter. Bake in moderate oven. Glaze with powdered sugar thinned with rose water, lemon juice or water.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Henry Ford, as we all know, because he's proclaimed it from the house-top several times, is one of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover's best boosters for the presidency.

John Hays Hammond is the other. Between these two, politicians reckon Herbert surely ought to be able to finance a campaign, if he finally chooses to run.

Henry's said to be still pretty well fixed, even if it did cost him a few hundred millions to make over his car. John Hays, while no such Croesus as the flivver king, nevertheless is far richer than mud.

If it's easy to understand why Henry approves of Herb, as the very soul of efficiency and championship standardizer of the United States, it's easier yet to understand why John Hays Hammond approves of him.

Standardization may not appeal quite as violently to John Hays as to Henry—the former's a cultured man, of catholic tastes, who knows what's what in rare vintages and objects d'art, and prefers not to have all his things poured out of the same mould—but efficiency does.

Aside from that, John Hays Hammond and Herbert C. Hoover (his middle name's Clart, but he doesn't use it because it isn't alliterative) are fellow mining engineers, and powerful successful ones, too.

Each was born with a swivel foot, which has carried him all over the world.

They've got things in common—that pair.

John Hays Hammond and Herbert Hoover, alike, have dug holes all over the face of this earth.

Naturally they like to swap experiences.

They're quite near neighbors here in Washington—live only two or three blocks apart—and can get together in what spare time Herbert's got and, so far as John Hays is concerned, in any time there is—for he's retired completely and does nothing but dip coupons and write his memories.

They have samples of ore to show one another.

Herbert tells John Hays about the coolies he worked in North China. John Hays tells Herbert about the kaffirs he bossed in South Africa.

Then again, they're mutual acquaintances.

They both know all the kings and queens and presidents and empire builders and other moguls there are to be known. John Hays knew a lot who are dead or deposed—not from meeting 'em at formal receptions, but from sitting down and talking with 'em off dress parade, like ordinary folks.

John Hays, referring to King George, recounts what he said to him, and Herbert, speaking of the Queen of Belgium, relates what he said to her.

When it comes to adventures, John Hays Hammond rather has it on Secretary Hoover.

The former was once sentenced to be hanged, and Herbert can't quite tie that yarn. On the other hand, Herbert's story about feeding the Belgians, in its way beats anything John Hays has to offer.

One thing with another, it's a pretty even break.

John Hays Hammond himself has been a bit talked about for the presidency, in his time, but at 70-odd he's too old for it now.

That being the case, if he can manage it, he'd like to see the job filled by some other competent mining engineer.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Those Tiresome Teens
I sometimes think the most trying time of life is the teens, notwithstanding the saying that youth is the happiest period. Not only is it time of physical change, but also mental, and parents often seem unable to realize that their little people are growing up and need different attitudes.

How I wish all parents would try hard to remember how they felt when they were at that uncomfortable age and be as understanding and sympathetic as possible.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a 14-year-old sophomore in high school. I have been invited to several parties, but I am never allowed to hold any in my own home, because my mother objects to having boys at parties until I am 16."

Now, you must know, Mrs. Lee, that even one has boys and girl parties don't they? I have several boy friends who are nice, quiet boys, and as I shall soon be 15 I should like to have a birthday party. What would you suggest? Shall I try to argue mother into being "modern"? Please answer my letter as soon as possible.

SALLY.

I don't know where your letter has been all this time, Sally, but I know I was shocked when I saw the date. I try to answer them in turn, but if yours came it must have been sadly mislaid. I am so sorry. Mother's dictum that you should not go with boys until you are 16 sounds sensible, but would he all right if you were not associating with boys all the time in school. Tell her you want her to know the boys who are your friends so she will be able to help you choose the right kind when you are old enough to go with them.

I'm afraid I can't do that, Kitty. He evidently likes you, but has lost interest as he is wishing to have very much of your company. Don't be afraid of the future without him. Just make up your mind to have other friends, and you will find in time you don't care, either.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

"Well, how did you like it?" demanded Rattler. Peter shook his head. "Not a bit," said he. "It made me feel creepy."

"I thought you wouldn't," I thought it would," hissed Rattler, replying to Peter's remarks in the same breath and sounding hopelessly mixed up. "If you shiver like that at watching only me, I don't know what you would have done if you could have seen that crowd of us twisting and coiling, out on that sun-baked ledge."

"I don't understand why you did not fall off!" exclaimed the Boy.

"No danger," answered Rattler. "Every Serpent made sure of his distance, you can be sure of that. His body is his measuring tape. He knew whether he was going to land on the ledge or over it before he leaped. You see, we haven't any feet to carry us into trouble. All we must think about are our bodies. When those are once bountied for we are all right. Why, we can have a lot of fun and exercise without moving from a spot."

"I'll say so!" cried Peter, as he watched Rattler going through the same performance again. "You are a bundle of muscles, aren't you?"

"You have," declared Peter, and shut his eyes. "I can see you and your neighbors just as plainly as though I had been on top of the cliff that morning."

"Right!" And if you're so good at seeing things in your mind, close your eyes again and picture all those Serpents, growing weary of the dance, crawling, one after another, into that deep, dark cave, cuddling down each to his neighbor as close as he could get, and going fast asleep."

"Picture all those Serpents crawling in after the others into the deep dark cave!"

peering down. And you are right, Rattler. I had much rather hear about it than see it with my own eyes."

NEW FORD CAR

exceeds all expectations

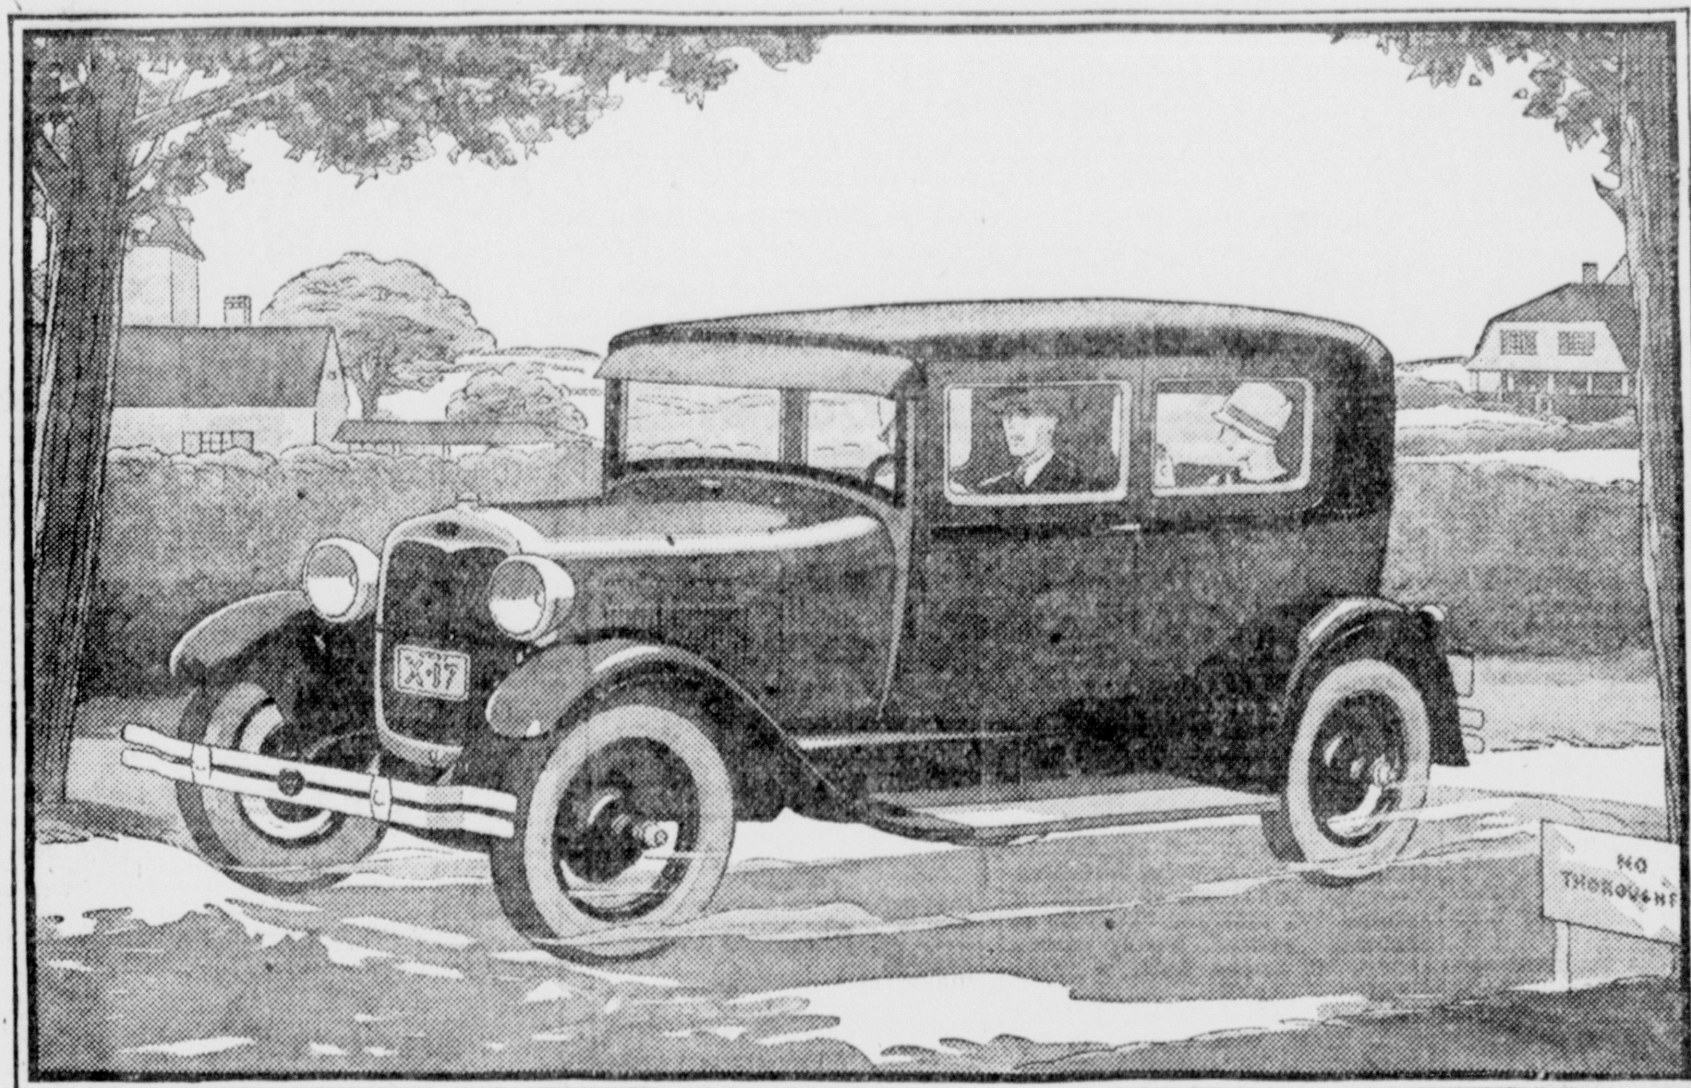

Official announcement of new model last week created unusual interest throughout entire country

THE new Ford car has been on the market only a few days, but it has already created unusual interest throughout the country. Millions of people got the full details of it last week for the first time and were delighted with the story of its beauty, speed, comfort, safety and low price.

All day long and far into the night, great crowds gathered in hundreds of Ford salesrooms from Maine to Florida and from New York to San Francisco. Never has such interest been shown in a new car. Never has any new car so far exceeded expectations.

People knew that Ford was making a new car. They knew it was a good car. They had read announcements about it. But they had no idea it would be a car like this. Their quick appreciation of it is shown by the record-breaking sales.

Greatest day in the history of the automobile industry

Thousands upon thousands of orders for the new Ford car have been received since last Friday. These and the advance orders placed with us by motorists even before the car was officially announced, will keep the entire Ford plant working day and night for weeks to come.

Such figures are a clear and unmistakable reflection of the value that has been built into the new Ford car. It is, without question, the outstanding purchase of all time in the light-car field.

Until you see the beauty of the new Ford car—ride in it—know the thrill of driving it easily and safely through thickest traffic or step it up to sixty and sixty-five on the open road, you cannot begin to appreciate the extent of the many mechanical improvements embodied in its construction. It is difficult to believe that so much speed, power, beauty, quiet, comfort and safety can be had at such a low price. It would be impossible if this new car were made by anyone but Ford.

Only Ford could sell such a fine car at such a low price

The low price of the new Ford car and its exceptional performance are the result of manufacturing practices and economies as unusual as the car itself. The new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

By all means, take a little while today to learn about this new automobile. You will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

TWO INDICTED MEN
PAROLED; THIRD IS WAITING DECISION

Three persons, all colored, indicted by the October grand jury, were arraigned in Common Pleas Court Saturday. Disposition was made of two cases and paroles were granted in both instances.

George Pettiford, pleading guilty to an indictment for removing mortgaged property out of the state, was sentenced to serve from one to five years in Ohio State Penitentiary and then paroled in the custody of Attorney E. D. Smith.

The parole was with the consent of Fred S. Johnston, prosecuting witness. The court stipulated that Pettiford must pay Attorney Smith $10 per month until $25 is paid back to Johnston.

Bertha Harris was paroled in the care of William S. Rogers, after being sentenced to serve from one to twenty years in the Ohio Reformatory for Women at Marysville, O., on an indictment for cutting with intent to kill. She pleaded guilty. Future good behavior is also made a condition of the parole.

John Morgan withdrew a former plea of not guilty in favor of a guilty plea to an indictment for concealing stolen property. The court reserved sentence pending a further investigation of the case. Morgan was permitted to be released on his own recognizance on his promise to remain in Greene County, subject to further order of the court.

CHILD CUT ABOUT
FACE IN ACCIDENT

Merlin Dean Stonerock, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlin Stonerock, 1836 Rose Ave., Dayton, was seriously cut in the eye and on his face by flying glass when an auto driven by the boy's father, collided with a car driven by a colored man by the name of Rose, near Bishop's Corner, near Jamestown, Saturday night.

One of the other occupants of the machines was hurt. The accident happened, it is said, when Rose, driving ahead of Stonerock, made a sudden left-hand turn and the front of the Stonerock car and that driven by Rose locked fenders. The Stonerock car was thrown off the road and plumed through a fence. The child was cut by the broken windshield.

BELGIAN CROWN PRINCE SERVES AS YOUNGEST LEGISLATOR

Prince Leopold of Belgium, his wife, Princess Astrid, and Daughter, Princess Josephine-Charlotte with her nurse

By ANNE SOMERHAUSEN
BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 4.—"Leopold, Prince of Belgium, Duke of Brabant, do you swear that you will obey the constitution?"

"I swear that I shall obey the Belgian constitution."

Tall, blonde, blue-eyed, young Prince Leopold, Belgium's throne heir, promised in a firm voice to obey the constitution that will make him a king of a country no larger than Maryland, but owning an African colony eighty times as large.

The prince, or "Duke of Brabant," as he is called officially, is twenty-six, and is the youngest legislator in his country, where the minimum age of senators is forty.

Princess Astrid's Function

Prince Leopold's decision to enter the senate came as a surprise even to members of the Belgian upper house.

Only three weeks earlier, the Duke of Brabant had become the father of little Princess Josephine-Charlotte, his wife and "Duchess of Brabant," seemed hardly strong enough to attend such a public function.

Nevertheless, she came, all dressed in white, with orchids in her hands, to see her husband join the aged legislators who will initiate him into politics and the making of laws.

Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid are so popular that even the Socialist senators arose on the occasion to welcome the couple to their midst.

When they were married, a year ago, in Sweden, and returned to Belgium, the crowds were so enthusiastic about their youth and grace that they broke through the lines of police and soldiers, and surrounded the royal couple, separated them from all their courtiers, and half carried them to the city hall.

Loved by Countrymen

The young crown prince first gained the love of his countrymen when he volunteered during the World war, at the age of fifteen, at a time when the Belgian army fought desperately around Ypres to save the last inches of Belgian soil.

Two years ago, the crown prince traveled all over Belgian Congo colony and started a nation-wide movement in favor of economic and social improvements in the colony.

When Prince Leopold succeeds his father, King Albert, to the throne, he will be known as Leopold III, fourth king of the Belgians. The first sovereign elected by the Belgian nation after it had separated from Dutch Netherlands, in 1830.

Belgium's second king was Leopold II, who, by shrewd diplomatic activity, acquired the huge Congo colony in Central Africa, with a wealth of copper, diamond and gold mines.

Since only men succeed to the throne in Belgium, the recent birth of Prince Leopold's little daughter was not celebrated as enthusiastically as the birth of a prince would have been. Only fifty-one gun shots were fired in honor of the princess, while there would have been 121 for a prince.

COLUMBUS OPERA TO OPEN FEBRUARY 20;
"AIDA" IS PREMIER

Many advance subscriptions for the season of grand opera to be given in Columbus by the Chicago Civic Opera Company are already in the mail, although the first performance is not until February 20. The residents of Central Ohio have never before had an opportunity to hear grand opera of the highest type without traveling to distant cities for the privilege. Prices, too, are within easy reach, being scaled from $2.00 to $6.00. Requests for reservations are being sent to Mrs. Perry B. Monypeny, 320 First National Bank Building, Columbus, who is in charge of the advance sale.

The three performances, scheduled for February 20, 21 and 22, will be given at the New Columbus Auditorium, Town and Front Sts. This structure has a seating capacity of 5,500 and a stage so large and so completely equipped that it is one of the most spectacular productions of the season.

"Aida," with its opening performance, this famous opera of Verdi's with its sumptuous pageant of ancient Egypt, will be sung by a stellar cast headed by Rosa Raisa in the title role. Associated with her will be Charles Marshall, Giacomo Rimi (who, in private life, is Raisa's husband), Cyrena Van Gordon and Virgilio Lazari. An orchestra of 60, a chorus of 50 and a large ballet are involved in this, as in the other operas to be presented.

Tuesday night will offer America's most famous prima donna, Mary Garden, in the latest of her series of operatic portraits—the part of Katusha in "Resurrection." This opera, the outstanding novelty of last season in Chicago, is the work of Franco Alfano, the composer who was chosen by Puccini to complete the opera "Turandot" which was left unfinished at the elder composer's death. Miss Garden will be supported by Lorna Doone Jackson, Julia Claessens, Rene Maison and Cesare Formichi.

The third performance will be "La Traviata" presenting Claudio Muzio as Violetta. Other characters in this operatic version of "Camille" will be Alice d'Hermanoy, Charles Hackett, Richard Bonelli, Jose Mojica and Desire DeFreere.

SPRING VALLEY TEAMS DIVIDE OVERTIME GAME WITH KINGMAN

Spring Valley High School boys' and girls' basketball teams broke even in two games with Kingman High on the former's floor Friday night, the Valley feminine team winning easily 22 to 8 while the boys were defeated in an overtime game by the 18 to 17.

Spring Valley boys have never beaten Kingman but came closer to victory in Friday's game than on any previous occasion.

The score stood 17 to 17 at the end of the regulation playing period, requiring a three-minute extra session. In the over-time period, a foul was called on a Spring Valley player and Shadaker, star Kingman forward, made the free throw for what proved to be the winning point.

Shadaker was the individual star of the contest, scoring twelve points, including four baskets and four fouls. After making the winning point in the extra period, he was forced from the contest by the personal foul rule.

There was no outstanding star for Spring Valley and the point-making was divided between the two forwards, Smith and Funk, and Beam, center. Smith scored

PAUL WANER CHOSEN MOST VALUABLE OF NATIONAL PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Paul (Big Point) Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been chosen the most valuable player in the National League, Waner amassed a total of seventy-two points in the votes cast by newspapermen from eight different cities, six more than Frankie Frisch got, and he will be awarded a bronze medal and $1,000 in cash.

Rogers Hornsby was third with fifty-four points. The highest possible vote is eighty points. Each of eight newspapermen, one from each city in the league, vote for two players, listing them as he rates them in order of value to their teams.

Five of the writers named Waner for first place, two awarded him third place and one listed him fifth. Frisch did not have a first place, but he got a block of second and thirds. The voting for first place was the closest since the National League inaugurated the plan in 1924. Twenty-six players were voted for. Those who received ten or more points are:

Statistics of the contest indicate Xenia's superiority lay in its aerial offensive. Out of fourteen passes attempted by the Merchants, ten were completed for a net gain of 184 yards. The remaining four were incomplete. Dayton tried five passes, completing one, while two were grounded and two were intercepted.

Xenia registered seven first downs to four for Dayton. Only one penalty was imposed during the entire game, which set Xenia back five yards.

Captain Smith at fullback, and Yeakley at center, played outstanding games for Xenia, the former of the offensive and the latter on the defensive. Myers, halfback, and Bruin, quarterback, starred for Dayton.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creosolium, an effective creosote that is pleasant to take. Creosolium is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosolium is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creosolium contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creosolium is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu.

ONE NICKEL!

That's All It Takes to Settle This Question of Real Smokes at 5c Per

Some men say it can't be done. Some men say it never could be done. Some men say it never will be done. Let them argue. The fact remains that a mild, fragrant cigar can be produced to sell for 5c.

There is such a cigar on sale today. A cigar that's been on the market for thirty years and is selling bigger than ever—at 5c. A cigar that cost more money for years. That is a finer smoke today than it ever was. It's mild, ripe tobacco. A cool, slow smoker. Full of aroma. Satisfying. It's got everything you have a right to expect in a higher-priced cigar.

Hard to believe? Here's the way to prove it, at a total cost of five cents. Ask for just one Havana Ribbon anywhere in town. You'll know the happy truth from the first draw. If you wonder how we do it, the answer is volume production. Production that runs into millions. Buy one Havana Ribbon today, and you'll buy a dozen tomorrow.

The Theater

"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand," as the hymn says, is being matched by the procession of Paramount pictures released from "Chang" in Siam's tropical jungle to "Peaks of Destiny" in the glaciers of the high Alps. "Peaks of Destiny" a German Ufa production, made in Switzerland with the storm-wrecked Matterhorn towering many of the backgrounds, is not a direct lineal success to "Chang" and to such other back-to-nature pictures as "Stark Love," "Grass" and "Nanook of the North." Here a change is made and the love story and adventure elements are played up to equal the interest in the mountain scenery. But, like those earlier pictures of man battling for life in unusual surroundings, "Peaks of Destiny" casts the atmosphere for a dominating role. The picture is just being exhibited in New York and is to be distributed over the country.

One lesson of such pictures as the foregoing is borne out by an examination of the seven pictures which have taken the seven medals of the Photoplay Magazine's award for the best picture produced each year. It is that a distorted jazz romance or a stressing of sex appeal is not necessary to a successful motion picture. George Bernard Shaw, one of the greatest of living dramatists, said the other day, that he was weary of the movies' emphasis on sex. "Peaks of Destiny" even has a triangular love conflict, but it is kept within proportions so that the majestic setting and stirring action get a chance. There was practically no love element in all the nature pictures mentioned. Of the seven pictures winning the medal, none placed emphasis on sex. "Beau Geste" which took last year's prize, was an adventure mystery with a bizarre setting with a theme of brotherly love. The two other winning pictures for Paramount were "Humoresque" in 1926, with a mother love theme and "The Covered Wagon" in 1923 with a historical theme.

FIRE LOSS SMALL

Damage estimated at $10 was caused by a roof fire at a residence at 32 Jefferson St., occupied by Earl Foster, colored, and owned by Julia Foster, Kansas City, Mo., at 4:10 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The blaze was caused by sparks from the chimney igniting the shingle roof, burning a hole eight feet square. Firemen used chemicals to extinguish the flames.

POSTMASTER URGES PROPER MAILING OF CHRISTMAS PARCELS

Seeking to develop the co-operation of mailers in the preparation of their Christmas mail, since such co-operation is considered an important and necessary factor in effecting its satisfactory movement, Postmaster C. S. Frazer is urging patrons to comply with the mailing conditions set forth below:

Postage—Prepay postage fully on all mail matter.

Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or indorsement reading: "Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary," together with name and address of sender, as required parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to opening at the latter rate.

Limit of Weight and Size—Parcels may not exceed eighty-four inches in length and girth combined nor weigh more than seventy pounds. If for delivery within the first, second or third zone, or fifty pounds in any other zone.

Permissible Additions and Inclosures—Parcels may be marked "Do not open until Christmas," this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

Written greetings such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With best wishes," and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of description may be inclosed with third or fourth class (parcel-post) mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

Where To Mail Parcels—Uninsured parcels eight ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over eight ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office.

HUNTS PIGEONS ON AVENUE

CLEVELAND, O.—Police Chief Jacob Graul has heard the call of the wild. He is to ally forth with his trusty rifle and an assistant in the person of Patrolman Peter Merylo on a pigeon hunt. But not far. The flock is reported on Euclid Avenue, just around from Cleveland's busiest district. Two years ago the chief enjoyed such a hunting excursion and believes that he is best qualified to take care of the flock this year, too.

CHILD SERIOUSLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHING CATCHES FROM STOVE

Edith May Fry, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fry, Upper Bellbrook Pike, was seriously burned when her clothes caught fire when she played too close to a stove at her home, Saturday night.

Edith May and her brothers and sisters had been left alone for a time by their parents, who were away from the child's burns until after she had been rushed to a doctor's office. Neighbors of the Fry's heard the child's screams and found her with all her clothing ablaze.

The fire was quenched, but not before Edith May was burned about the head and over her entire body, except her feet and legs. Her hair was burned off and all the burns are of a serious nature. Dr. F. M. Chambliss, who attended her, believes the little girl inhaled the flames but hopes to save her life. She was removed to her home after the burns were dressed at Dr. Chambliss' office.

Farm Notes

THE EXCEPTIONAL HEN
That a hen crosses the road for reasons of her own, and lays an egg a day, is all the information about her possessed by some members of the public. As a matter of fact, there is no record of a hen laying an egg a day for a full year. The standard as laid down by the poultry department of Ohio State University is 160 eggs in 365 days. The state average is about seventy eggs. Of course high grade hens do better. More than one hen on the records of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association has beaten the 300-egg mark in 365 days. But they are not common hens.

Egg production for the average hen is at the lowest point in November, when five eggs for the month is the standard requirement. This standard rises month by month to twenty-one eggs in April, then falls again.

This information is included on the Ohio State Poultry Calendar, distributed through the agricultural agents by the Ohio State University, to more than 3,000 Ohio poultry growers, who have registered with their agricultural agents and agreed to keep an accurate record of the performance of their flocks for 365 days. The calendar contains

Discussion of recommendations for changes made by the consulting medical staff of the O. S. and S. O. Home in the plans for the new Home hospital, took place at the monthly meeting of trustees, Saturday. The board discussed the slight changes in the plans for the $100,000 hospital which will be ironed out before the final acceptance of the plans.

Recommendations of the Ohio Vulture, Forty and Eight Society, drawn up at the meeting held at the Home last week, were not presented to the board for consideration. Only routine business otherwise confronted the board during the session.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON
GETTING BY
A few days ago I had a conversation with a friend who is building a very beautiful and expensive home. Unfortunately she is situated so that she cannot visit her place every day while the house is in construction.

The building operations are all under contract, with careful specifications for every detail of the job. Among other things, the specifications call for heavy oak doors, oak staircase with iron balustrade and mahogany hand rail.

They call for special tile flooring, for certain kinds of French doors, and the best kind of plaster on the inside.

"A few days ago," said my friend, "I found that the contractor had put up a pine staircase. Of course that had to come down. You see, I got there before he had had time to stain the steps oak. He thought he could 'get by'."

"A few days later I found this man was trying to put a pine door instead of an oak one in place. 'When it was stained no one could tell the difference,' remarked one of the carpenters, innocently.

"Again someone was trying to 'get by'."

"I found that none of the French doors fitted. In the rainy season I would be deluged with rain inside my rooms."

"What do you expect to do with those windows? I asked one of the men."

"Well," he answered, "the people won't get in until summer. Those windows are all right in fair weather. By the time the rain comes we can say they have shrunk."

"He expected to 'get by.'"

One of the most frequent phrases we hear now-a-days is "I think we can get by."

This seems to be one of the tendencies of the age in which we live. Everyone wants to "get by" and having been able to do this, one sits back in prideful admiration of his being able to "get the best of the other fellow."

One has a good deal of commendation for the Rotarians, who have lately been expending time and money in a propaganda of honest dealing and patriotic endeavor.

Until we eliminate from our vocabulary the phrase "get by" and substitute for it "honest work for honest pay," the sooner we will get back to that "normalcy" of which President Harding told us.

In the meantime every man is suspecting the other man and keeping this motto in his mind if not in his office.
